It is important to understand that the term "cognitive" does not refer to the content of the information being processed, but to the way the information is processed. For example, the information "the sky is blue" is processed differently if it is processed as a statement of fact, as a question, or as a command. The way the information is processed determines the way it is stored in memory and the way it is retrieved from memory. This is why it is important to understand the way the information is processed, not just the content of the information.
