Growing Up Human Brenna Hassett, 2022-06-30 Brings the science of biological anthropology to bear on understanding how our evolutionary history has shaped a phenomenon everyone has experienced childhood Tracking deep into our evolutionary history anthropological science has begun to unravel one particular feature that sets us apart from the many many animals that came before us our uniquely long childhoods Growing Up Human looks at how we have diverged from our ancestral roots to stay forever young or at least what seems like forever and how the evolution of childhood is a critical part of the human story Beginning with a look at the ways animals invest in their offspring the book moves through the many steps of making a baby from pair bonding to hidden ovulation points where our species has repeatedly stepped off the standard primate path From the mystery of monogamy to the minefield of modern parenting advice biological anthropologist Brenna Hassett reveals how differences between humans and our closest cousins lead to our messy mating systems dangerous pregnancies and difficult births and what these tell us about the kind of babies we are trying to build Using observations of our closest primate relatives the tiny relics of childhood that come to us from the archaeological record and the bones and teeth of our ancestors science has started to unravel the evolution of our childhood right down the fossil record In our species investment doesn't stop at birth and as Growing Up Human reveals we can compare every aspect of our care and feeding from the chemical composition of our milk to our fondness for formal education from ancient times onwards in order to understand just what we evolved our weird and wonderful childhoods for Safety Education, 1929 A magazine of the good adventure

Growing up with Parents who have Learning Difficulties Tim Booth, Wendy Booth, 2005-08-10 Growing up with Parents who have Learning Difficulties uses a life story approach to present new evidence about how children from such families manage the transition to adulthood and about the longer term outcomes of such an upbringing It offers a view of parental competence as a social attribute rather than an individual skill assessing the implications for institutional policies and practices The authors address the notion of children having to parent their disabled parents and

argue for a shift in emphasis from protecting children to supporting families This innovative book provides a fresh approach to a subject rife with prejudice and challenges us to think again about many taken for granted ideas about the process of parenting and the needs of children It also demonstrates the power of narrative research and its capacity for bringing alive people s experience in a way that enables us to better understand their lives Growing Up and Out of Crime Elias

Nader,2024-02-23 Developmental norms and expectations for young people aged 18 25 have diverged from previous generations creating a new stage in the life course called Emerging Adulthood Theory surrounding this stage of emerging adulthood emphasizes a delay in achieving turning points into adulthood that are typical of this age group These delays in turn affect how maturation can influence the desistance from crime Utilizing evidence from the narratives of justice involved emerging adults this book details key turning points for today s young person trying to desist from crime Building on evidence from researchers and theorists as well as from the author s own narrative interviews this book provides a brief and approachable review of the extant literature summarizing work across the fields of developmental psychology sociology and criminology to provide the reader with an understanding of the maturation of young people in their late teens and 20s before concluding with considerations for policy and practice building from this evidence Growing Up and Out of Crime is perfect for students scholars and academics who study youth young adults and their maturation deviance and desistance as well as for practitioners working with young people engaging in desistance Childhood Chris Jenks,2005 Childhood is an extremely complex and highly contested concept It refers to a life phase as well as to the age group defined as children but is also a cultural construction part of the social and economic structure of communities The key scholarship collected introduced and reprinted in these volumes reflects this complexity and introduces the reader to the wide variety of interpretations that have been and continue to be placed on it It might be suggested that the push or initiative in theorizing childhood has derived from advances within sociology and anthropology However the future provides potential for interdisciplinary study which this collection also reflects The contemporary study of childhood must comprise a conjoining of disciplines sociology anthropology psychology social geography history philosophy and socio legal theory all have something to add to the field and are represented within the collection Growing Up in an Urbanizing World Louise

Mohammad Jabbar,2023-03-29 On their list of 17 Sustainable Development Goals for all nations the United Nations uses 5 to achieve equality and empower all women and girls One of the nine targets under goal 5 is gender equality in the ownership of productive assets especially land by 2030 When it comes to achieving gender equality in developing countries like Bangladesh women and men s equal access to property is generally seen as a goal that is universally desirable But what if this were a wholly inappropriate metric for measuring and achieving gender equality by 2030 across diverse situations in the developing world and Bangladesh in particular This is exactly the case author and development expert Mohammad Jabbar makes in this impressive thoroughly researched work of non fiction Among other acute insights he argues SDG target on gender equality is asset ownership by 2030 may be ill suited for the rural Bangladeshi context because of The inappropriate use of the concept of household over that of family as a survey unit for measuring its attainment The potential for the creation of superfluous junk statistics for monitoring progress that measure ownership and use rights not indicative of actual gender in equality The general lack of understanding it displays of local laws customs and norms of gender inheritance and other vital concepts related to asset ownership Thoughtful in its conception and precise in its execution this carefully argued piece of academic research is sure to make a useful even necessary addition to the bookshelves of anyone interested in development and gender equality whether they be academics policymakers researchers students or laypeople
