Go to the Gym

People misunderstand of having a humble mindset as opposed to having a go getter mindset. The difference is the thought process of when you are feeling down or feeling weak, how is your mind going to respond? What is it going to tell you? Is it going to tell you "Well... maybe we should go to the gym today? Eh... I don't feel to good today so maybe tomorrow I will go." As opposed to "Get the Hell up and go the gym! Because only you feel sorry about yourself and no one else." That's the type of mindset why people need to be successful in life, but instead they sit there and feel sorry for themselves. I'm sick of tired of seeing it. If you want something, go out there and get it. So with me and my physical fitness journey, you damn well better believe that I'm going to go after what I want, what my goals are and if anyone stands in my way, I'll plow through them. So go out there and go to the gym and do yourself a favor.

People need to understand that it is not healthy to be overweight, there is nothing good about it. It can put you at risk for strokes, diabetes, high blood pressure, and all kinds of health related issues down the line as you get older. Being overweight can get you lead to have knee replacement surgery, joint repair, gastric bypass, etc... and all these things are a direct reflection of poor choices in life and poor eating habits. So look, I am not going to accept you for who you are with the excuse of "You should love me because I am beautiful." Yes, your personality can be beautiful, but your body is not. When I sit there and I look at somebody that is overweight; I find that utterly repulsive and disgusting. Why? Because it shows a lack of self discipline. Yea, people do keep making excuses on why they can not go to the gym or even walk outside, but we all know it's just sheer laziness. That is the cold truth of it. You can be the person that will help them support that unhealthy lifestyle and watch them eat themselves into a grave or be the person that will help them be healthy and not let them face the issues later on in life.

What makes me go to the gym everyday is the feeling of completion. Working out my muscles to their max extent and feeling the pain through each rep gives me the motivation to want more. It's like a drug, but it's not. Watching your body slowly getting more toned and looking at the scale and seeing that you lost a certain amount a pounds is just dopamine for the soul. All this brings more confidence in yourself to wear tight shirts and not having to cover yourself in jackets because you are insecure about your body. I was like this until I started to work out and it has boosted my confidence from a 10 to 100. Now, I do not care what people think about my body because I know that everyday it is getting better and better.

Post-Exercise Recovery: Fundamental and Interventional Physiology Sergej M. Ostojic, 2016-05-25 Physiological responses after maximal and submaximal exercise are routinely monitored in a plethora of diseases e g cardiovascular diseases cancer diabetes asthma neuromuscular disorders and normal populations e g athletes youth elderly while slower or irregular post exercise recovery usually indicates poor health and or low fitness level Abnormal post exercise recovery as assessed via blunted post exercise heart rate dynamics helps to predict the presence and severity of coronary artery disease while differences in recovery outcomes in athletes might discriminate between fit and unfit individuals. Disturbances in post exercise recovery might be due to acute or persistent changes in 1 adaptive responses mediated by the autonomic nervous system and vasodilator substances 2 cellular bioenergetics and or 3 muscular plasticity. Preliminary evidence suggests possible role of time dependent modulation of nitric oxide synthase and adenosine receptors during post exercise recovery yet no molecular attributes of post exercise recovery are revealed so far. Currently several markers of post exercise recovery are used e.g heart rate measures hormone profiles biochemical and hematological indices however none of them meets all criteria to make its use generally accepted as the gold standard. In addition recent studies suggest that different pharmacological agents and dietary interventions or manipulative actions e.g massage cold water immersion compression garments athletic training administered before during or immediately after exercise could positively affect post exercise recovery. There is a growing interest to provide more evidence based data concerning the effectiveness and safety of traditional and novel interventions to affect post exercise recovery. The goals of this research topic are to critically evaluate the current advances on mechanisms and clinical implications of post exercise recovery and to summarize recent experimental data from interventional studies. This knowledge may help to identify the hierarchy of key mechanisms and recognize methods to monitor and improve post exercise recovery in both health and disease.
