Motor System and Motor Diseases: From Molecules to Circuits Jing-Ning Zhu,Ying Shen,Paul G.

Mermelstein,2020-06-04 Movement is the basis for many forms of behaviors and is tightly controlled by a hierarchical system containing cerebral cortex basal ganglia cerebellum brainstem and spinal cord Each level of this hierarchy contributes to motor planning motor initiation motor execution and motor coordination respectively However they all receive continuous sensory inputs and generate accurate sensorimotor integrations that are necessary for both predictive and reflexive servo controls of movements The motor system contains various types of neurons with different morphological neurochemical and electrophysiological properties which are significantly dependent on many intracellular signaling molecules Interestingly these neurons are interconnected by intricate neuronal circuits for motor control and even interacted with other non motor systems to orchestrate somatic nonsomatic integration Furthermore synaptic and neural plasticity endows motor system with amazing abilities for not only motor learning but also compensation and recovery from motor diseases such as Parkinson s disease ataxias motion sickness and amyotrophic lateral sclerosis etc Therefore the motor system is of great importance for understanding information processing integrative function and neural plasticity of the central nervous system The aim of this Research Topic is to discuss the latest advances in our understanding of motor system motor control motor learning and motor diseases from molecular cellular synaptic circuit and behavioral levels especially in an integrative perspective The

Quantitative analysis of neuroanatomy Julian M L Budd,Hermann Cuntz,Stephen J

Eglen,Patrik Krieger,2016-03-22 The true revolution in the age of digital neuroanatomy is the ability to extensively quantify anatomical structures and thus investigate structure function relationships in great detail Large scale projects were recently launched with the aim of providing infrastructure for brain simulations These projects will increase the need for a precise understanding of brain structure e g through statistical analysis and models From articles in this Research Topic we identify three main themes that clearly illustrate how new quantitative approaches are helping advance our understanding of neural structure and function First new approaches to reconstruct neurons and circuits from empirical data are aiding neuroanatomical mapping Second methods are introduced to improve understanding of the underlying principles of organization Third by combining existing knowledge from lower levels of organization models can be used to make testable predictions about a higher level organization where knowledge is absent or poor This latter approach is useful for examining statistical properties of specific network connectivity when current experimental methods have not yet been able to fully reconstruct whole circuits of more than a few hundred neurons Neural Circuit Formation and Sensory Inputs Hitoshi Sakano,Kensaku Mori ,Charles A. Greer,2024-11-11 Sensory systems play important roles in inducing a variety of responses that are critical to the survival of individuals and species Neural circuits are generated by a combination of activity dependent and independent processes The basic architecture of sensory systems is built before birth based on a genetic program However the neural maps and circuits are further refined after birth in an activity dependent manner If the system is left unstimulated in neonates its function is permanently impaired and cannot be recovered even when it is stimulated after the critical period Orchid Genomics and Developmental Biology, Volume II Jen-Tsung Chen,Katharina Nargar,2023-02-20
