

A Symphony of Trees

by Charles Ghigna

Trees make such exciting sounds.
They whisper, when we're near.
Whenever we pass by the trees,
This is what we hear:

We hear their branches sway and creak.
We hear the wind howl higher.
We hear a symphony of trees,
Off nature's great, green choir.

We hear the squirrels scampering.
We hear the blue jays sing.
We hear the robin and the dove--All sounds the trees can bring.

But one thing that we never hear
When we pass through the park;
We hear the trees' sweet symphonies,
But we never hear their bark!

Reading the Written Image Christopher Collins,1991 Reading the Written Image is a study of the imagination as it is prompted by the verbal cues of literature Since every literary image is also a mental image a representation of an absent entity Collins contends that imagination is a poesis a making up an act of play for both author and reader The willing suspension of disbelief which Coleridge said constitutes poetic faith therefore empowers and directs the reader to construct an imagined world in which particular hypotheses are proposed and demonstrated Although the imagination as a central concept in poetics emerges into critical debate only in the eighteenth century it has been a crucial issue for over two millennia in religious philosophical and political discourse The two recognized alternative methodologies in the study of literature the poetic and the hermeneutic are opposed on the issue of the written image poets and readers feel free to imagine while hermeneuts feel obliged to specify the meanings of images and failing that to minimize the importance of imagery Recognizing this problem Collins proposes that reading written texts be regarded as a performance a unique kind of play that transposes what had once been an oral dramatic situation onto an inner imaginary stage He applies models drawn from the psychology of play to support his theory that reader response is essentially a poietic response to a rule governed set of ludic cues
