Carranza,2016-07-15 The conventional wisdom based on realist premises is that nuclear weapons are an irreversible reality in South Asia and that efforts to denuclearize the subcontinent are a futile endeavor As a result real nuclear arms control in South Asia remains elusive and scholars continue focusing their efforts on how to achieve crisis stability and deterrence stability in future Indo Pakistani confrontations However they tend to analyze India and Pakistan s nuclear diplomacy as if the nuclear competition occurred in complete isolation from the changing dynamics of the international social environment Using a constructivist model this study brings nuclear arms control and disarmament back into the debates on the future of Indo Pakistani relations

Constructivism recognizes the independent impact of international norms such as the Nuclear Non Proliferation Norm NNPN on India and Pakistan's nuclear behavior. Even though the NNPN does not legally bind them, it is reinforced at the global level and may lead the South Asian rivals to move in the direction of nuclear arms control and disarmament, thus reducing the costs, dangers, and risks of an eternal strategic rivalry. After examining the main tenets of constructivism in international relations, the work delves into the proliferation debate, discussing nuclear reversal and U.S. policy toward the subcontinent since the G.W. Bush administration. It looks at the prospects for nuclear arms control and disarmament in South Asia after the U.S.-India nuclear deal of 2008 and the nuclear abolitionist wave during the first Obama administration. It concludes with the contribution of social constructivism to understanding how changes in the India-Pakistan nuclear status quo can happen.

South Asia's Nuclear Security Bhumitra Chakma, 2014-12-17 South Asia is often viewed as a potential nuclear flashpoint and a probable source of nuclear terrorism. But how valid are such perceptions? This book seeks to address this question and assesses the region's nuclear security from two principal standpoints. First, it evaluates the robustness of the Indo-Pakistani mutual deterrence by analysing the strength and weaknesses of the competing arguments regarding the issue. It also analyses the causes and consequences of nuclear arms race between India and Pakistan, the nature of deterrence structure in the region, and the challenges of confidence building and arms control between the two countries in order to assess the robustness of South Asia's nuclear deterrence. Second, it assesses the safety and security of the nuclear assets and nuclear infrastructure of India and Pakistan. The author holds that the debate on South Asia's nuclear security is largely misplaced because the optimists tend to overemphasise the stabilising effects of nuclear weapons and the pessimists are too alarmists. It is argued that while the risks of nuclear weapons are significant, it is unlikely that India and Pakistan will give up their nuclear arsenals in the foreseeable future. Therefore, what needs to happen is that while nuclear elimination should be the long-term goal, in the interim years, the two countries need to pursue minimum deterrence policies to reduce the likelihood of deterrence failure and the possibility of obtaining fissile materials by non-state actors. CLAT UG Entrance
