

What happened to Lehman Brothers?

- Lehman Brothers was a global financial services firm founded in 1847. After more than 150 years in operation, the company entered into the largest bankruptcy proceedings in U.S. history.
- Lehman Brothers' large stake in mortgage securities made it especially vulnerable to the looming credit crisis in 2007. It made a half-hearted effort to reduce its exposure in the industry but continued to be an active player after its share price experienced a temporary rebound.
- Market sentiment turned against Lehman Brothers as investors questioned its heavy exposure to mortgage securities. Capital raisings, investment partnerships, and takeover attempts only delayed the inevitable bankruptcy in September 2008.
