Gini Coefficient World Human Development Report 202008:

The Law of Globalization Laurence Boule,2009-01-01 There is a growing clamour particularly from the main beneficiaries of globalization that rules need to be established to govern the international economy with a specific focus on questions such as copyright violations trade sanctions and protections for foreign investment Those who perceive they are disadvantaged by globalization demand other legal protections in relation to employment cultural traditions and the environment Pursuing Sustainable Development Goals Billur Engin Balın,H. Dilara Mumcu Akan,Ferda Karagöz Özenç,Özcan Garan,2024-05-15 Human Development Report 1992 United Nations Development Programme,1992 Since its headline making debut the Human Development Report has become an essential resource for development specialists economists and political scientists around the world The 1992 Report not only updates the findings of the earlier volumes but also examines the international dimensions of human development showing how global economic growth and the expansion of the world economy have filtered down to poor economies and poor people in developing countries In addition it examines tckps between human development and international markets for products capital and labor addresses issues of global governance and presents updated human development indicators for more than 160 countries Human Development Report 1996 United Nations Development Programme,1996 The Human Development Report now in its seventh edition updates the unique Human Development Indicators comparing human development in most countries of the world and the data tables on all aspects of human development The special focus of this edition is on the important link between economic growth and human development The Report maintains that the link is not automatic but can be established through proper policy management arguing the case for initiating and accelerating economic growth and at the same time accelerating and sustaining human development in different parts of the world The Report also maintains that the quality of growth is as important as its quantity otherwise growth can be jobless voiceless ruthless rootless and futureless It identifies employment as an important instrument in translating the benefits of economic growth into people s lives An indispensable resource for courses in international development the Report ranks 174 countries according to the Human Development Index HDI It also gives the global ranking of more than 100 countries in terms of Gender Related Development Index GDI and the Gender Empowerment Measure GEM The first index represents HDI taking into account gender inequality in capabilities and the second represents female opportunities in selected economic and political areas New to this edition is the Capability Poverty Measure CPM which is used as an alternative to the traditional income poverty measure The Report concludes that the future challenge is how to forge and sustain the desired kind of linkage between economic growth and human development in a globalized world which represents both opportunities and threats for the nations of the world Human Development Report 1990 United Nations Development Programme,1990 First in a series of annual reports this volume is about people and about how development enlarges their choices access to income long life knowledge political freedom personal security community participation and guaranteed human rights It measures human development not by the yardstick of income alone but by the human development index reflecting life expectancy literacy and command over resources to enjoy a decent standard of living The report analyzes the record of human development for the last three decades and the experience of 14 countries in managing economic growth and human development The volume concludes with human development indicators for more than 130 countries both developing and developed ISBN 0 19 306481 X pbk 15 95 A Multiplicative Human Development Index , Human Development Report 2023/2024 United Nations Development Programme,2024-03-13

Today collective action on challenges ranging from climate change mitigation to peace and security is frustratingly slow or stymied altogether Lack of trust and polarization both associated with insecurity exacerbate the gridlock Shared interlinked global challenges like the pandemic and its recovery are outpacing our willingness and our institutions capacities to respond to them Why despite all our riches and technologies are we so stuck How do we get unstuck Is it possible to mobilize action to address globally shared challenges in a world that is intensively polarized The 2023 2024 Human Development Report explores these issues and offers a platform for strategic discussion on how to move beyond narrow zero sum thinking and support cooperation even as we have diverging interests and views The e book for this publication has been converted into an accessible format for the visually impaired and people with print reading disabilities It is fully compatible with leading screen reader technologies such as JAWS and NVDA Human Development Index Fouad Sabry,2024-01-13

want to go beyond basic knowledge or information for any kind of human development index Human Development Report 1996 United Nations Development Programme,1996 The Human Development Report now in its seventh edition updates the unique Human Development Indicators comparing human development in most countries of the world and the data tables on all aspects of human development The special focus of this edition is on the important link between economic growth and human development The Report maintains that the link is not automatic but can be established through proper policy management arguing the case for initiating and accelerating economic growth and at the same time accelerating and sustaining human development in different parts of the world The Report also maintains that the quality of growth is as important as its quantity otherwise growth can be jobless voiceless ruthless rootless and futureless It identifies employment as an important instrument in translating the benefits of economic growth into people s lives An indispensable resource for courses in international development the Report ranks 174 countries according to the Human Development Index HDI It also gives the global ranking of more than 100 countries in terms of Gender Related Development Index GDI and the Gender Empowerment Measure GEM The first index represents HDI taking into account gender inequality in capabilities and the second represents female opportunities in selected economic and political areas New to this edition is the Capability Poverty Measure CPM which is used as an alternative to the traditional income poverty measure The Report concludes that the future challenge is how to forge and sustain the desired kind of linkage between economic growth and human development in a globalized world which represents both opportunities and threats for the nations of the world Human Development Report ,1999 Human Development Report 2007/2008 United Nations Development Programme,2015-12-29 This year s Human Development Report explains why we have less than a decade to change course and start living within our global carbon budget and how climate change will create long run low human development traps pushing vulnerable people into a downward spiral of deprivation A Means to Closing Gaps Ahmet Halis Akder,1994 Multiple Dimensions of Human Development Index and Public Social Spending for Sustainable Development Iana Paliova,Robert McNown,Grant Nülle,2019-09-26 Multidimensional assessment of human development is increasingly recognized as playing an important role in assessing well being The focus of analysis is on the indicators measuring the three dimensions of Human Development Index HDI standard of living education and health and their relationship with public social spending for achieving the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development The study estimates the effects of public social spending on gross national income GNI per capita in PPP in expected years of schooling and life expectancy for a sample of 68 countries The relationship is robust to controlling for a variety of factors and the estimated magnitudes suggest a positive long run effect of public educational spending on GNI per capita public educational spending on expected years of schooling and public health expenditures on life expectancy Human Development Report 2020 United Nations,2021-01-31 Thirty years ago UNDP created a new way to conceive and measure progress Instead of using growth in GDP as the sole measure of development we ranked the world's countries by their human development by whether people in each country have the freedom and opportunity to live the lives they value. The 2020 Human Development Report (HDR) doubles down on the belief that people's agency and empowerment can bring about the action we need if we are to live in balance with the planet in a fairer world. It shows that we are at an unprecedented moment in history in which human activity has become a dominant force shaping the planet's key processes: the Anthropocene. These impacts interact with existing inequalities, creating unparalleled threats of human development reversal and exposing weaknesses in social, economic, and political systems. Though humanity has achieved incredible progress, we have taken the Earth for granted, destabilizing the very systems upon which we rely for survival. COVID-19, which almost certainly sprang from animals, offers a glimpse of our future in which the strain on our planet mirrors the strain facing societies. How should we react to this new age? Do we choose to strike out on bold new paths, striving to continue human development while easing planetary pressures? Or do we choose to try and ultimately fail to go back to business as usual and be swept into a dangerous unknown? This Human Development Report is firmly behind the first choice, and its arguments go beyond summarizing well-known lists of what can be done to achieve it.

Human Development Report 2007/2008, 2009. Reducing Global Poverty. Barry B. Hughes, Mohammad T. Irfan, Haider Khan, Krishna B. Kumar, Dale S. Rothman, Jose Roberto Solorzano, 2015-12-22. This is the first volume in an ambitious new series, Patterns of Potential Human Progress, inspired by the UN Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) and other initiatives to improve the global condition. The first and most fundamental of these goals, reducing poverty worldwide, is the focus of this book. Using the large-scale computer program called International Futures (IFs), developed over three decades at the prestigious University of Denver Graduate School of International Studies, this book explores the most extensive set of forecasts of global poverty ever made, providing a wide range of scenarios based on an authoritative array of data. It transcends the 1-a-day baseline measure of poverty and probes important concepts like income poverty, gaps, and relative poverty. The forecasts are long-term, looking 50 years into the future, far beyond the 2015 date set out by the MDGs. They are geographically rich, spanning the entire globe and drilling down to the country level, including one of the most important global focal points, India. The poverty forecasts in this book, and all the volumes in the series, are fully integrated in perspective across a wide range of human development arenas, including demographics, economics, politics, agriculture, energy, and the environment. Full of colorful, thoughtfully designed graphs, tables, maps, and other visual presentations of data and forecasts, this large-format inaugural volume ensures that the Patterns of Potential Human Progress series will become an indispensable resource for every development professional, student, professor, library, and indeed, country around the world.

Global High-Resolution Estimates of the United Nations Human Development Index Using Satellite Imagery and Machine-learning. Luke Sherman, 2023. The United Nations Human Development Index (HDI) is arguably the most widely used alternative to gross domestic product for measuring national development. This is in large part due to its multidimensional nature as it incorporates not only income but also education and health. However, the low country level resolution of the global HDI data released by the Human Development Report Office of the United Nations Development Programme (N=191 countries) has limited its use at the local level. Recent efforts used labor intensive survey data to produce HDI estimates for first level administrative units (e.g. states/provinces). Here we build on recent advances in machine learning and satellite imagery to develop the first global estimates of HDI for second level administrative units (e.g. municipalities/counties, N=61,591) and for a global 0.1° × 0.1° degree grid (N=806,361). To accomplish this we develop and validate a generalizable downscaling technique based on satellite imagery that allows for training and prediction with observations of arbitrary shape and size. This enables us to train a model using provincial administrative data and generate HDI estimates at the municipality and grid levels. Our results indicate that more than half of the global population was previously assigned to the incorrect HDI quintile within each country due to aggregation bias resulting from lower resolution estimates. We also illustrate how these data can improve decision making. We make these high resolution HDI estimates publicly available in the hope that they increase understanding of human wellbeing globally and improve the effectiveness of policies supporting sustainable development. We also make available the satellite features and software necessary to increase the spatial resolution of any other global scale administrative data that is detectable via imagery.

Gini Inequality Index Nitis Mukhopadhyay, Partha Pratim Sengupta, 2021-04-21 Prof Nitis Mukhopadhyay and Prof Partha Pratim Sengupta who edited this volume with great attention and rigor have certainly carried out noteworthy activities. Giovanni Maria Giorgi, University of Rome Sapienza: This book is an important contribution to the development of indices of disparity and dissatisfaction in the age of globalization and social strife. Shelemyahu Zacks, SUNY Binghamton: It will not be an overstatement when I say that the famous income inequality index or wealth inequality index which is most widely accepted across the globe is named after Corrado Gini (1884-1965). I take this opportunity to heartily applaud the two co editors for spending their valuable time and energy in putting together a wonderful collection of papers written by the acclaimed researchers on selected topics of interest. Today I am very impressed and I believe so will be its readers. K V Mardia, University of Leeds: Gini coefficient or Gini index was originally defined as a standardized measure of statistical dispersion intended to understand an income distribution. It has evolved into quantifying inequity in all kinds of distributions of wealth, gender parity, access to education and health services, environmental policies and numerous other attributes of importance. Gini Inequality Index: Methods and Applications features original high quality peer reviewed chapters prepared by internationally acclaimed researchers. They provide innovative methodologies, whether quantitative or qualitative, covering welfare, economics, development, economics optimization, non optimization, econometrics, air quality, statistical learning, inference, sample size determination, big data science and some heuristics. Never before has such a wide dimension of leading research inspired by Gini's works and their applicability been collected in one edited volume. The volume also showcases modern approaches to the research of a number of very talented and upcoming younger contributors and collaborators This feature will give readers a window with a distinct view of what emerging research in this field may entail in the near future

A Household-Based Human Development Index Kenneth Harttgen, Stephan Klasen, 2013 One of the most serious weaknesses of the Human Development Index HDI is that it considers only average achievements and does not take into account the distribution of human development within a country or by population subgroups All previous attempts to capture inequality in the HDI have also used aggregate information and there exists no HDI at the household level This paper provides a method and illustration for calculating the HDI at the household level This immediately allows the analysis of the HDI by any kind of population subgroups and by household socioeconomic characteristics Furthermore it allows to apply any kind of inequality measure to the HDI across population subgroups and over time We illustrate our approach for 15 developing countries Inequality in the HDI is largest in poorer countries particularly in Sub Saharan Africa We also find large inequalities within countries between population subgroups particularly by income location and education of the household head We also find considerable inequality when looking at inequality measures like the Theil or the Gini coefficient within group inequality is however invariably larger than between group inequality and inequality in the HDI within countries is of similar order of magnitude of inequality in the HDI between countries
