

Rattlesnake for Dinner

David Love was a geologist who studied rocks and fossils. He studied the Earth's crust and the way in which its layers were formed. David grew up in Wyoming on a ranch in the early 1900s. When David was born, he and his brother were the only children in a thousand square miles (2,590 sq km).

Once, when David and his brother were young, they killed a rattlesnake that measured over five feet (1.5 m) long. To David's family, the snake was more than a dangerous and poisonous viper: it was food. That night, David's mother served the snake for dinner. She served it creamed on toast.

There was a guest for dinner the night the rattlesnake was served. David's father told David and his brother that they were not to use the word "rattlesnake" at the table. Instead, the boys were to use the word "chicken." This was, their father said, because the guest might not be too happy about eating a poisonous viper.

During the meal, David and his brother started talking about rattlesnakes and other poisonous vipers. They talked about how often they encountered snakes and where the vipers' dens could be found. They also said how very good rattlesnakes were to eat.

How did their guest respond? He said, "If anybody ever gave me rattlesnake meat, I'd kill them."

David and his brother became deathly quiet, but their mother simply asked the guest if he wanted more chicken.

"Don't mind if I do," their guest replied.
