Experimental Investigation of Turbulent Boundary Layer with Uniform Blowing at Moderate and High Reynolds Numbers

Gazi Hasanuzzaman, 2022-01-18 Experimental investigation in turbulent boundary layer flows represents one of the canonical geometries of wall bounded shear flows. Utmost relevance of such experiments however is applied in the engineering applications in aerospace and marine industries. In particular, continuous effort is being imparted to explore the underlying physics of the flow in order to develop models for numerical tools and to achieve flow control. Flow control experiments have been widely investigated since 1930s. Several flow control techniques have been explored and have shown potential benefit. But the choice of control technique depends largely on the boundary condition and the type of application. Hence, friction drag of subsonic transport aircraft is intended to be reduced within the scope of this Ph.D. topic. Therefore, application of active control method such as microblowing effect in the incompressible zero pressure gradient turbulent boundary layer was investigated. A series of experiments have been performed in two different wind tunnel facilities. Wind tunnel from Department of Aerodynamics and Fluid Mechanics, LAS was used for the measurements for moderate Reynolds number range in co-operation with the wind tunnel from Laboratoire de Mécanique de Fluides de Feiret, Lille for large Reynolds number range. Measurements are conducted with the help of state-of-the-art techniques such as Laser Doppler Anemometry, Particle Image Velocimetry and electronic pressure sensors.

Customer Co-Design Stefan R. Thallmaier, 2014-10-15 Stefan R. Thallmaier's investigation enables mass customization businesses to better understand how co-design increases customers' value perception. He focuses on the increasing proliferation of service channels online, mobile and in-store and digital media toolkits, social media and live help at the co-design interface. Based on qualitative and quantitative research, the author examines how this proliferation impacts customers' value perception in the different stages of the co-design process. The research shows that customers' value perception profits from varying levels of social presence throughout the co-design process. The work helps researchers and practitioners with surprising insights as well as hands-on recommendations to improve and adapt interfaces for customer co-design.

Climate Engineering as an Instance of Politicization Judith Kreuter,2020-12-01 This book examines the academic discussion on climate engineering as an instance of politicization as a subject of deliberation and decision making It traces legitimizing and delegitimizing frames applied to discuss both Carbon Dioxide Removal and Solar Radiation Management approaches in academic publications and their implications for political decision making Moreover it offers insights into how academic discourse on climate technology can influence political decision making especially at a technological stage where a socio technical system with a high degree of inertia does not yet exist The high degree of diversity of frames in the academic discussion is understood as an opportunity for deliberate decision making concerning the future roles of these approaches in global climate policy This book demonstrates how insights from science and technology studies can be operationalized in empirical political analysis It appeals to scholars in both political science and environmental science who are interested in climate change policy making and the science policy nexus
