Reference Publication ,1992 Reliability and Maintainability (RAM) Training Vincent R. Lalli,2000 The theme of this manual is failure physics the study of how products hardware software and systems fail and what can be done about it The intent is to impart useful information to extend the limits of production capability and to assist in achieving low cost reliable products In a broader sense the manual should do more It should underscore the urgent need for mature attitudes toward reliability Five of the chapters were originally presented as a classroom course to over 1000 Martin Marietta engineers and technicians Another four chapters and three appendixes have been added We begin with a view of reliability from the years 1940 to 2000 Chapter 2 starts the training material with a review of mathematics and a description of what elements contribute to product failures The remaining chapters elucidate basic reliability theory and the disciplines that allow us to control and eliminate failures Failure to Launch Mark McConville, Ph.D.,2021-01-05 From an expert in adolescent psychology comes a groundbreaking timely and necessary guide for parents of the 22 million young adults in America who are struggling to find their way in the world In Dr Mark McConville's decades of experience as a family clinical psychologist perhaps no problem has been more fraught than that of young adults who fail to successfully transition from adolescence into adulthood These kids technically adults just can't get it together They can't hold a job they struggle to develop meaningful relationships and they often end up back in their parents spare bedroom or on the couch In fact studies show that one in four Americans aged twenty five to thirty four neither work nor attend school and it's a problem that spans all socioeconomic and geographic boundaries McConville investigates the root causes of this problem Why are modern kids failing to launch in ever increasing numbers The key McConville has found is that they are struggling with three critical skills that are necessary to make the transition from childhood to adulthood finding a sense of purpose developing administrative responsibility and cultivating interdependence In Failure to Launch McConville breaks these down into achievable accessible goals and offers a practical guide for the whole family to help parents instill those skills in their young adults and to get their kids into the real world ready to start their lives

Implementing an Inclusive Staffing Model for Today's Reference Services Julia K. Nims, Paula Storm, Robert Stevens, 2013-11-26 Reference service remains a core function of modern libraries However how and where we provide assistance has evolved with changing technologies and the shifting habits and preferences of our users One way libraries can provide the on demand in person assistance while managing and developing new services and resources that will benefit current and future users is to reconsider how their reference points and services are staffed and adopt a staff based reference model The authors staff members at Eastern Michigan University chose to address this by implementing an inclusive reference model in which staff and student assistants are trained to answer certain levels of reference questions while working at the reference desk and at other service points The result was that librarians became more available to work with students who needed in depth assistance and users were able to get simple questions answered throughout the library

Similar training for all staff and student assistants who work in the library results in better service more accurate answers and improved interdepartmental communication In Implementing an Inclusive Staffing Model for Today's Reference Services they describe step by step how to transition from the traditional librarian staffed reference desk to an inclusive reference model where non MLS personnel are equipped and empowered to answer reference questions wherever these questions might be asked Users ask questions of staff at all service points not just at the Reference Desk It is vitally important that those who work at circulation periodicals maps archives and other public service points be trained in how to answer certain reference questions When this is accomplished users who have simple questions will not have to make useless treks to the Reference Desk Topics covered include Recognizing that nearly all staff answer reference questions but few are trained to do so documenting the necessity for a change in reference model gaining buy in from all interested parties librarians non MLS staff and administrators determining the optimal staffing level creating training materials and schedules monitoring the quality of reference service supervising staff evaluating the new model using multiple methods Additionally each chapter contains practical resources such as checklists forms and sample materials and other usable features to support readers as they implement the inclusive reference model The book describes in detail the process of transforming traditional reference into a model that transcends departmental and job title boundaries is focused on the user and allows librarians to better utilize their time and talents and include non professional staff in their reference services
