Morgan,2004 Aggression may be defined as the act of initiating hostilities or invasion the practice or habit of launching attacks or the practice or habit of launching attacks Aggression is one of the most important and most controversial kinds of motivation Its use as a category in the psychology of motivation has often been criticised because it is clear that it encompasses a vast range of phenomena from modern war to squabbles between individuals There is an important familial component to aggression antisocial behaviour crime and violence Essentially all people are in some way affected by aggression whether they are targets of it engage in it themselves or are charged with observing and controlling it in others Thus aggression is of concern to victims perpetrators and those professionals charged with its treatment because of personal safety well being or obligation This new book examines the foundations and manifestations of aggression Task Force Report: Narcotics and Drug Abuse; Annotations and Consultants' Papers United States. President,1967 Advances in Human Aspects of Transportation: Part III Neville Stanton,Steven Landry,Giuseppe Di Bucchianico,Andrea Vallicelli,2022-07-19 Human Factors and Ergonomics have made a considerable contribution to the research design development operation and analysis of transportation systems which includes road and rail vehicles and their complementary infrastructure aviation and maritime transportation This book presents recent advances in the Human Factors aspects of Transportation These advances include accident analysis automation of vehicles comfort distraction of drivers understanding of distraction and how to avoid it environmental concerns in vehicle systems design intelligent transport systems methodological developments new systems and technology observational and case studies safety situation awareness skill development and training warnings and workload This book brings together the most recent human factors work in the transportation domain including empirical research human performance and other types of modeling analysis and development The issues facing engineers scientists and other practitioners of human factors in transportation research are becoming more challenging and more critical. The common theme across these sections is that they deal with the intersection of the human and the system. Moreover, many of the chapter topics cross section boundaries for instance by focusing on function allocation in NextGen or on the safety benefits of a tower controller tool. This is in keeping with the systemic nature of the problems facing human factors experts in rail and road aviation and maritime research. It is becoming increasingly important to view problems not as isolated issues that can be extracted from the system environment but as embedded issues that can only be understood as a part of an overall system.

Road Rage Maria L. Garase, 2006. Annotation: Garase examines aggressive driving and road rage among college students. Her approach is based in Agnew's General Strain Theory (GST) 1992. She uses GST theory to include the three sources of strain: situational and trait anger and coping mechanisms, peer relationships and self control. Strain has a direct positive significant relationship with road rage and also an indirect effect through the coping mechanism of peer behavior. Garase concludes that strain as well as trait anger play significant roles in determining who is likely to participate in acts of aggressive driving and road rage.

Road Rage Tara E. Galovski, Loretta S. Malta, Edward B. Blanchard, 2006. Annotation: Road Rage provides a detailed and integrative summary of the existing literature on aggressive driving as well as detailed assessment information on the aggressive drivers from a variety of perspectives: standardized psychological tests, psychiatric diagnoses and psychophysiological measurement among others.

Task Force Report United States. President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice, 1967. Racial Profiling Steven J. Muffler, 2006. In recent years racial profiling has drawn the attention of state and federal governments. In this book racial profiling is defined as the practice of targeting individuals for police or security interdiction, detention or other disparate treatment based primarily on their race, ethnicity or national origin in the belief that certain minority groups are more likely to engage in unlawful behaviour.

Assertions that law enforcement personnel at all levels unfairly target certain racial and ethnic groups particularly but not exclusively for traffic stops and searches have raised concerns about violations of the Constitution. The major debate on racial profiling centres on whether the practice should be prohibited entirely and whether data on traffic stops and searches should be collected to determine if the practice is occurring. This book gathers, presents the major issues, available data and analyses important to understanding on the most dangerous and divisive practices of our time.

Driving With Music: Cognitive-Behavioural Implications Warren Brodsky, 2017-03-02. This book the first full length text on the subject explores the everyday use of music listening while driving a car. It presents the relationship between cars and music in an effort to understand how music behaviour in the car can either enhance driver safety or place the driver at increased risk of accidents. A great deal of work has been done to investigate and reduce driver distraction and inattention but this book is the first to focus on in cabin aural backgrounds of music as a contributing factor to human error and traffic violations. Driving With Music begins by outlining the automobile its relationship to society and the juxtaposition of music with the automobile as a complete package It then highlights concepts from the fields of music perception and cognition and within this framework looks at the functional use of background music in our everyday lives Driver music behaviours both adaptive and maladaptive are explored with the focus on contradictions and ill effects of in car music listening To conclude implications applications and countermeasures are suggested Communication, Public Discourse, and Road Safety Campaigns Nurit

Guttman,2014-06-05 This book discusses the use of communication campaigns to promote road safety arguing that they need to elicit public discourse on issues pertaining to culture equity gender workplace norms environmental issues and social solidarity Increasingly new media channels and formats are employed in the dissemination process making road safety related messages ubiquitous and often controversial Policy makers educators researchers and the public continue to debate the utility and morality of some of the influence tactics employed in these messages such as the use of graphic images of injury or death stigmatization or blame and shame and the use of black humor Guttman argues that influencing road safety requires making changes in normative and cultural conceptions of broader issues in society yet the typical discourse on road safety tends to focus on individual attitudes and practices The book highlights the importance of social and behavioral theory in communication campaigns on road safety and critiques the tendency to focus on individual cognition affect and risk conceptions rather than on normative structural and cultural factors The volume positions the discourse on road safety as a social issue and treats road safety behavior as a social activity that directly relates to other public issues social values and social policy while discussing potential uses of social media and participatory approaches The discussion turns to the role of road safety communication campaigns as part of a democratic process of eliciting public discourse including how contemporary society could address broader issues of risk and safety The Psychology of Interpersonal Violence Clive
