

Chapter 8: Microbial Metabolism

Objectives:

- The metabolism of microbes
- Enzymes
- The pathways: glycolysis, Krebs's cycle, ETC, Fermentation
- Photosynthesis

Why Do All Living Organisms Need Nutrition?

Metabolism

- Metabolism: All chemical reactions and physical workings of the cell
- Functions of metabolism:
 - Assembles smaller molecules into larger macromolecules needed for the cell
 - Degrades macromolecules into smaller molecules and yields energy
 - Energy is conserved in the form of ATP or heat
- Anabolism (biosynthesis): any process that results in synthesis of cell molecules and structures (usually requires energy input)
- Catabolism: the breakdown of bonds of larger molecules into smaller molecules (often release energy)

Enzymes

- Enzymes are catalysts
- Catalysts - chemicals that increase the rate of a chemical reaction without becoming part of the products or being consumed in the reaction
- Structure:
 - Most are protein
 - Can be classified as simple or conjugated:
 - Simple Enzymes - consist of protein alone
 - Conjugated Enzymes - contain protein and nonprotein molecules
 - A conjugated enzyme (holoenzyme) is a combination of a protein (now called the apoenzyme) and one or more cofactors
 - Cofactors are either organic molecules (coenzymes) or inorganic elements (metal ions)

How do Enzymes Work

- Energy of activation: the amount of energy which must be overcome for a reaction to proceed.
- An enzyme promotes a reaction by serving as a physical site upon which the reactant molecules (substrates) can be positioned for various interactions.

Apoenzymes: Specificity and the Active Site
