Towards version control in object-based systems Jakob Reschke, Marcel Taeumel, Tobias Pape, Fabio Niephaus, Robert Hirschfeld, 2018 Version control is a widely used practice among software developers It reduces the risk of changing their software and allows them to manage different configurations and to collaborate with others more efficiently This is amplified by code sharing platforms such as GitHub or Bitbucket Most version control systems track files e g Git Mercurial and Subversion do but some programming environments do not operate on files but on objects instead many Smalltalk implementations do Users of such environments want to use version control for their objects anyway Specialized version control systems such as the ones available for Smalltalk systems e g ENVY Developer and Monticello focus on a small subset of objects that can be versioned Most of these systems concentrate on the tracking of methods classes and configurations of these Other user defined and user built objects are either not eligible for version control at all tracking them involves complicated workarounds or a fixed domain unspecific serialization format is used that does not equally suit all kinds of objects Moreover these version control systems that are specific to a programming environment require their own code sharing platforms popular well established platforms for file based version control systems cannot be used or adapter solutions need to be implemented and maintained To improve the situation for version control of arbitrary objects a framework for tracking converting and storing of objects is presented in this report It allows editions of objects to be stored in an exchangeable existing backend version control system The platforms of the backend version control system can thus be reused Users and objects have control over how objects are captured for the purpose of version control Domain specific requirements can be implemented The storage format i e the file format when file based backend version control systems are used can also vary from one object to another Different editions of objects can be compared and sets of changes can be applied to graphs of objects A generic way for capturing and restoring that supports most kinds of objects is described. It models each object as a collection of slots. Thus users can begin to track their objects without first having to implement version control supplements for their own kinds of objects. The proposed architecture is evaluated using a prototype implementation that can be used to track objects in Squeak Smalltalk with Git. The prototype improves the suboptimal standing of user objects with respect to version control described above and also simplifies some version control tasks for classes and methods as well. It also raises new problems which are discussed in this report as well.

IUTAM Symposium on Advances in Mathematical Modelling of Atmosphere and Ocean Dynamics P.F. Hodnett, 2001-08-31 The goals of the Symposium were to highlight advances in modelling of atmosphere and ocean dynamics to provide a forum where atmosphere and ocean scientists could present their latest research results and learn of progress and promising ideas in these allied disciplines to facilitate interaction between theory and applications in atmosphere ocean dynamics. These goals were seen to be especially important in view of current efforts to model climate requiring models which include interaction between atmosphere ocean and land influences. Participants were delighted with the diversity of the scientific programme, the opportunity to meet fellow scientists from the other discipline either atmosphere or ocean with whom they do not normally interact through their own discipline, the opportunity to meet scientists from many countries other than their own, the opportunity to hear significant presentations 50 minutes from the keynote speakers on a range of relevant topics. Certainly the goal of creating a forum for exchange between atmosphere and ocean scientists who need to input to create realistic models for climate prediction was achieved by the Symposium and this goal will hopefully be further advanced by the publication of these Proceedings.

Purine and Pyrimidine Metabolism in Man VII R. Angus Harkness, T.B. Elion, Nepomuk Zöllner, 1991-12-31 These two volumes record the scientific and clinical work presented at the VIIth International and 3rd European joint symposium on purine and pyrimidine metabolism in man held at the Bournemouth International Conference Centre Bournemouth UK from 30th June to 5th July 1991. The series of international meetings at three yearly intervals have previously been held initially in 1973 in Israel then Austria Spain the Netherlands USA and Japan. The European society for the Study of Purine and Pyrimidine Metabolism in Man ESSPPM which has its own executive and some finance first met in Switzerland in 1987 then in Germany in 1989. The steady evolution of the science in this series of meetings is intellectually satisfying, the subsequent clinical progress is emotionally and economically reassuring. As befits the position of purines and pyrimidines at the centre of biochemistry there has been steady scientific development into molecular genetics and now onto developmental controls and biochemical
