Aerospace physiology sometimes called flight or aviation physiology human factors or aeromedical factors is the scientific discipline studying the effects of flight conditions on human physiological and cognitive systems teaching aviators to work and function at peak efficiency in the abnormal environment of flight This information is introduced to pilots throughout their initial training including hypoxia spatial disorientation visual illusions fatigue trapped gases and many others The problem is all of these issues still create problems as well as fatalities for pilots on a regular basis even today Why Pilots may know about the information but fail to completely understand it This book will transform a pilot's potential misinterpretation of this subject matter into definitive action on the flight deck The newest most authoritative and comprehensive resource on this critical subject is Aerospace Physiology Aeromedical and Human Performance Factors for Pilots a pilot's number one source for enhancing safety of flight for all pilot experience levels As well as providing practical and realistic human performance information for private and professional pilots this book has been specifically written for use in academic settings unlike other books on this subject matter This book is currently the preferred text on flight physiology for the world renowned University of North Dakota's John D Odegard School of Aerospace Sciences The book contains 22 chapters discussing each topic thoroughly using the primacy of learning format and in an understandable manner complete with chapter core competency questions Each topic is covered in detail with environmental causes potential physiological cognitive responses followed by effective and proven anticipation mitigation strategies The book uses the most current research and experience
