Veiling in Africa Elisha P. Renne, 2013-06-04 This volume examines the complex histories politics and experiences of wearing Islamic dress in sub-Saharan Africa Heather Marie Akou Indiana University Bloomington The tradition of the veil which refers to various cloth coverings of the head face and body has been little studied in Africa where Islam has been present for more than a thousand years These lively essays raise questions about what is distinctive about veiling in Africa what religious histories or practices are reflected in particular uses of the veil and how styles of veils have changed in response to contemporary events Together they explore the diversity of meanings and experiences with the veil revealing it as both an object of Muslim piety and an expression of glamorous fashion This is an exciting and strong collection of original research on women s and men s veiling practices in a range of African Muslim settings and the social and religious discourses that accompany changes in dress over time Taken as a whole it offers a fascinating overview of African Muslim interpretations of theological debates about the veil and gender relations in Muslim societies while illustrating some of the particular accommodations adopted by African women

International Journal of African Historical Studies Explores the many meanings and uses of veiling which is so often treated as a monolithic phenomenon emblematic of Islam in different African and African diaspora contexts Emma Tarlo Goldsmiths University of London
