Two Decades of Research on Learning Disabilities in India

S. Ramaa*

Regional Institute of Education (NICERT), Manasa Gangotri, Mysore-570006, India

This paper describes a range of research studies relating to learning disabilities in India during the last two decades. Attention is called to the existence of many different languages within India. Standardized and teacher-made tools have been developed for assessment and remediation purposes. The paper ends by making some suggestions for further research.

INTRODUCTION

The concept of learning disabilities is still new in many developing countries. However, India has a history of research in this area, primarily over the last two decades. Investigators from different disciplines have been involved, such as education, psychology, paediatrics, speech and hearing, and psychiatry.

Conducting studies of learning disabilities in India is not an easy task because of its multilingual and multicultural background. At present, there are 25 states and seven Union Territories (UT). Each state/UT has its own language and each language has many dialectical forms. There are 18 standard languages, each one of which has its own orthographic system (for details of Indian writing systems see Prakash and Malatesha Joshi, 1995). In fact, the states were formed on the basis of the main regional language spoken by the majority of the people within certain geographical boundaries. Each state/UT has its own regional language (the language spoken by the majority of its people) and its official language. For example, in South India there are four main states—Karnataka, Tamil Nadu, Andhra Pradesh and Kerala. The official languages of these states are Kannada, Tamil, Telugu and Malayalam, respectively. Sometimes the spoken language and the official language are one and the same and sometimes they may be different. In India the majority of the people speak Hindi, which means that Hindi is the national language. English, too, since it is an international language, is also
