Enzymes and Cellular Regulation

(Illustrate the factors that regulate the activity of the enzyme catalase (catalase))

WUPT

Enzymes are protein-based biological molecules that play a crucial role in most life. They help various chemical reactions occur more efficiently and are regulated by various factors such as pH, temperature, substrate concentration, and cofactors. Enzymes function as catalysts, speeding up reactions without being consumed. They are highly specific, often only working on one type of substrate. The rate of an enzyme-catalyzed reaction is affected by several factors, including temperature, pH, and substrate concentration. The optimal conditions for an enzyme are those that allow it to function most efficiently. Enzymes are also regulated by various mechanisms, including allosteric regulation, covalent modification, and gene expression.
