ects the emergence of tissue engineering as a core discipline of modern biomedical engineering and recognizes the growing synergies between the technological developments in biotechnology and biomedicine Along this vein the focus of this volume is to provide a biotechnology driven perspective on cell engineering fundamentals while highlighting their significance in p roducing functional tissues Our aim is to present an overview of the state of the art of a selection of these technologies punctuated with current applications in the research and development of cell based therapies for human disease To prepare this volume we have solicited contributions from leaders and experts in their respective fields ranging from biomaterials and bioreactors to gene delivery and metabolic engineering Particular emphasis was placed on including reviews that discuss various aspects of the biochemical processes underlying cell function such as signaling growth differentiation and communication The reviews of research topics cover two main areas cellular and non cellular components and assembly evaluation and optimization of tissue function and integrated reactor or implant system development for research and clinical applications Many of the reviews illustrate how biochemical engineering methods are used to produce and characterize novel
