Toy Theory Seth Giddings, 2024-11-05 A novel interpretation of the history and theory of technology from the perspective of toys and play objects Toy Theory addresses the relationships between toys and technology in two distinct but overlapping ways first as underexamined cultural artifacts and behaviors with significant technical attributes and second as playful and toylike dimensions of technology at large Seth Giddings sets out a toy theory of technology that emphasizes the speculative experimental and noninstrumental in technological paradigms and argues that children's playthings rather than being the most ephemeral and inconsequential of technical devices instead offer analytical and anthropological resources for understanding the materiality and imaginaries of technology over time After defining toy theory in general and conceptual terms Giddings examines different types of toys to explore shifting relationships between the microcosmic symbolic or mimetic content material and technical constitution and modes of play of toys and toy related artifacts on the one hand and prevailing macrocosmic technological paradigms and imaginaries on the other Taking a broad historical and genealogical view Giddings traces contemporary postdigital toy and play culture to precedents from the neolithic through to the Enlightenment to consumer culture from the early nineteenth century to the present day

The Disaster of Resilience Kenneth J. Saltman, 2023-12-14 The past decade has seen a vast expansion of resilience pedagogies policies and products in public education from the Every Student Succeeds Act to social and emotional learning to grit Educational apps avatars and games as well as behaviorist techniques meditation programs and biometric devices claim to teach resilience to adverse social conditions while new cyber schools education brokers global democracy promotion companies and dropout recovery firms promise schools resilience to disaster and disruption The Disaster of Resilience shows how resilience discourse is interwoven with the new digital directions of educational privatization Saltman argues that resilience has provided the justification for new educational profiteering creating a climate which individualizes collective responsibilities depoliticizes and dehistoricizes knowledge and curriculum and falsely grounds its politics in a mashup of pseudoscience and human capital theory He argues that we must replace resilience discourse with pedagogies and curriculum that allow students not only to endure the intolerable conditions they find themselves in but to see beyond those conditions and to act collectively on the social economic and racial injustices that created them
