

Algebra 2 Unit 12: Statistical Notes

Variability and Sampling

Data is everywhere. In its rawest form, it's in our science classes, it shows up in economics, statistics and anywhere else that variability occurs. Variability is simply the property of outcomes being different. The tools of statistics are designed to explain this variability. There are many types of variability. It is good to understand these various tools in order to understand their strengths and weaknesses.

Example 1 The following types of variability can change randomly in a data set, but each gives us insight into our world.

- (a) Observational or Measurement Variability: Variability that is introduced due to either our measuring instruments not being precise enough or differences in how individual people read the measurement.

2 students measure time for a ball to roll down a ramp
→ different reaction times

- (b) Human Variability or Human-Induced Variability: Variability that occurs due to the fact that members of populations are simply different.

2 people work out same amount of time
→ different people use different amounts of weight

- (c) Treatment Variability: This type of variability is the result of some difference in the way one treatment was given compared with populations or samples to two or more treatment groups and thus, affecting the variability between the groups.

2 groups taking a test, one group allowed to sleep 8 hours, other group only 4 hours → different scores

- (d) Sample Variability: This is the type of variability that occurs when we take multiple samples. There is population variability. There is going to still be difference due to the variability of the samples or means.

Multiple samples of people surveyed to determine political candidate preference

Remember, through all of our work in this book, we are really trying to explain the variability of data within either a population or a sample and then using this to determine if the variability was the introduced to one of the factors above or the variability of the others.
