Death of the Daily News Andrew Conte, 2022-09-20 The City of McKeesport in southwestern Pennsylvania once had a population of more than fifty thousand people and a newspaper that dated back to the nineteenth century Technology has caused massive disruption to American journalism throwing thousands of reporters out of work closing newsrooms and leaving vast areas with few traditional news sources including McKeesport With the loss of their local paper in 2015 residents now struggle to make sense of what goes on in their community and to separate facts from gossip often driven by social media The changes taking place in this one Pennsylvania community are being repeated across the United States as hundreds of local newspapers close creating news deserts and leaving citizens with little access to reliable local journalism The obituary for local news however does not have to read all bad Even in the bleakest places citizens are discovering what happens in their communities and becoming gatekeepers to information for the people around them In McKeesport citizens are attempting to make sense of the news on their own for better and worse This experiment not only offers clues about what happens after a local newspaper dies but also provides guidance to the way forward

Diversity, equity and inclusion in sport and leisure Katherine Dashper,Thomas Fletcher,2016-01-08 Despite the mythology of sport bringing people together and encouraging everyone to work collectively to success modern sport remains a site of exclusionary practices that operate on a number of levels Although sports participation is in some cases at least becoming more open and meritocratic at the management level it remains very homogenous dominated by western white middle aged able bodied men This has implications both for how sport develops and how it is experienced by different participant groups across all levels Critical studies of sport have revealed that rather than being a passive mechanism and merely reflecting inequality sport via social agents interactions with sporting spaces is actively involved in producing reproducing sustaining and indeed resisting various manifestations of inequality The experiences of marginalised groups can act as a resource for explaining contemporary political struggles over what sport means how it should be played and by whom and its place within wider society Central to this collection is the argument that the dynamics of cultural identities are contextually contingent influenced heavily by time and place and the extent to which they are embedded in the culture of their geographic location They also come to function differently within certain sites and institutions be it in one s everyday routine or leisure pursuits such as sport Among the themes and issues explored by the contributors to this volume are social inclusion and exclusion in relation to class race and ethnicity gender and sexuality social identities and authenticity social policy deviance and fandom This book was published as a special issue of Sport in Society
