It has been suggested that the specific values are tied to those with East-West orientation and that are talking about their orientation in terms of being an "authoritarian" society. Evidence of authoritarianism was higher than in the United States, Mexico, Canada, and Japan. However, more likely, they called their society "authoritarian" to distinguish their orientation against liberalism or liberalism's orientation with other nations in the world. It is not authoritarian's word. But, since the sample consisted of individuals from different countries and have different values, it is not unusual to find different values other than liberalism in the authoritarian group.

I think someone's feeling guilty for someone and for the situation. There's nothing for the person to feel or be responsible for. "I never wanted" or "I couldn't" doesn't affect circumstances or what someone is feeling. The word "wants" that there that could be easily understood they are not understanding the person's feelings.
