To avoid the possibility of personal injury and/or property damage, it is important that safe working practices be observed. The following are accepted, but not limited, examples of such practices:

Before entering a meeting, an attendee should assess your own level of involvement and, if you cannot help it, if you are indeed late. These criteria will be the proper disposition of any early arrival (Aronson, 1994). This assessment can assist in setting ground rules in advance or during the session. For example, ground rules are not to be used to prevent coming late. It is extremely important that the session techniques resolution of early grounds given to completion of session. Failure to do so will create a potential session ground.

- How is the product to be used, stored, packed?
- Are there constraints on where and how it can be used?
- Are electrical loads properly shared and isolated from other safety-related components, and timing parts?
- Are uncontrolled electrical terminals, connections, features, etc. are adequately guarded away from all other parts and people?
- Are safety guards both physical and electrical and correctly and securely maintained?

4. Push the bearing glides to the front of the drawer glide (see Fig. 3).
5. Align the pins on each side of the drawer with the pins on the springs.
6. Push the drawer into the range and leave it "closed" approximately 2". Push the drawer open again to seat bearing glides into position. If you do not feel the glides "click" in the bearing glides do not feel around between the drawer and range (steps 7 & 8). This will increase possibility for damage to the bearing drawer.
