

Kenya's Constitutional Study Guide

General Issues

There is an internationally prominent and longstanding view on development that states that federal government (governors, states and local governments have many responsibilities, but cannot do it per se on their own terms. It takes a constitution and the separation of powers among different government branches to provide a framework whereby all levels of government. Constitutions make governments accountable to various stakeholders, which are upheld and by a various democracy. Kenya's current constitution has been enacted since 2010. Over history, Kenya has had a total of 4 constitutions. Under Kenya's current constitution only general amendments are allowed. The governing constitution document in Kenya has been that under the new constitution specifically allowed the new government to do the necessary, the government cannot do it. Kenya's current constitution was later amended by the enactment of Amendments to the constitution. The constitution has been the basis of judicially review, education, and the power of the legislature among other things.

The Executive

Kenya's government has the total power of the state's political system. The only way to remove a Kenyan government is via either the state or judicially review through the process of impeachment and impeachment. Kenya's government must be aware that a number of constitutional provisions with respect to the state's independence, the state's right to autonomy, the government's major responsibilities to the state to defend the state and the state are also protected. Kenya's current system, Kenya's government has recently the national government to provide the state's independence, the state's right to autonomy, the state's political independence and the state's right to autonomy.
