The School Reform Landscape

Reloaded Christopher H. Tienken, 2020-10-30 The School Reform Landscape Reloaded More Fear Myths and Lies peels back the curtain of school reform to examine the tensions that exist between the democratic and equitable system of public education and the emerging dual system based on elite interests aimed at profit making and decreasing education equity The author takes in depth and controversial look at school reform since the launch of Sputnik I Education reform events proposals and policies are examined through the lens of progressivist philosophy and critical social theory Some of the issues and policies critiqued include the neoliberal corporate influence on education the Sputnik myth A Nation At Risk standardization charter schools and other relevant topics The author provides an evidence based view of the free market reform ideas and he pierces the veil of the new reform policies to find that they are not built upon empirical evidence but instead rest solidly on foundations of myth fear and lies Ideas for a new set of reform policies based on empirical evidence and supportive of a unitary equitable and democratic system of education are presented

The Testing and Learning

Revolution Kavitha Rajagopalan, Edmund W. Gordon, 2016-01-28 Gordon shows how we can use assessment to support teaching and develop students competencies Between 2011 and 2013 Gordon chaired an interdisciplinary commission of scholars and thinkers who connected transformative research and ideas on learning teaching measurement the nature of tests intelligence capability technology and policy History Lessons S.G. Grant,2014-04-04 Uses extended case studies of two New York teachers and their students combined with discussion of the existing research literature to explore issues central to understanding teaching learning and testing in secondary school history classrooms Transparency in Assessment - Exploring the Influence of Explicit Assessment Criteria Anders Jönsson,Frans Prins,2019-04-03 In many schools and higher education institutions it has become common practice to share assessment criteria with students Sometimes it is required for accountability purposes at other times criteria are used as a means to communicate expectations to students However the idea that explicit assessment criteria should be shared with students has been contested On the one hand research has shown that explicit criteria may positively affect student performance reduce their anxiety as well as support students use of self regulated learning strategies On the other hand there are fears that explicit criteria may have a restraining influence on students learning as well as limiting their autonomy and creativity There are also indications of students becoming more performance oriented as opposed to learning oriented when being provided with explicit assessment criteria Taken together it is not fully understood under which circumstances it is productive for student learning to share explicit assessment criteria and under which circumstances it is not In particular empirical research on the proposed negative effects of sharing criteria with learners is limited and most fears voiced in the literature are based on individual experiences and anecdotal evidence In this book we therefore bring different perspectives on transparency in assessment together in order to further our understanding of how students are influenced by the use of explicit assessment criteria A deeper understanding of the influence of explicit assessment criteria on students understanding of criteria motivation and learning is equally imperative for future research and educational practice both of which need to go beyond individual opinions and convictions
