This extract focuses on the reasons for Lenin's New Economic Policy.

In March 1921 Lenin announced the end of War Communism and the inauguration of a New Economic Policy. The NEP was based on the following:

Requisitions from peasants were ended and a fixed tax in kind (grain) was substituted – which by 1924 had become a money tax. Once this tax was paid, the peasant was free to do what he liked with what remained. He could use it himself, sell it to the state or sell it on the open market which was now made legal. Private enterprise was allowed in trade and small-scale industry. Compulsory labour ceased; labour armies were stopped; bonuses were introduced for extra work. The currency was back on a sound footing and a regular system of taxation was introduced. Large-scale industry (coal, iron, steel, oil, electricity, railways) remained state-owned.

1.3 Refer to Source C.

1.3.1 Explain in your own words how Lenin's New Economic Policy was implemented.

(3)

The New Economic Policy was a drastic adaptation to the war communist policy, which allowed for a free market, private trade and enterprise. Private trade was no longer illegal, or government centralised. People paid a portion of their goods or income in the form of tax and were permitted to sell the rest on the open market. This stimulated the economy and encouraged economic growth.

1.3.2 In what ways was the New Economic Policy different to Lenin's ideal of a communist state? Support your answer with evidence from the source.

(3)

A communist state is one in which all individuals are equal. Under the NEP certain individuals profited more than others, which is a distinctly capitalist feature. This automatically created a sense of inequality and reduced the government's power and influence.

1.3.3 What was Lenin's intention for the state in creating the New Economic Policy?

It was Lenin's intention to recover the economy and to suppress peasant unrest, while still providing for the needs of the government.

P. Lewis,2025-04-12 Making Domesday presents a fresh interpretation of William the Conqueror s survey of England made possible by a major collaborative study and a new online edition of Exon Domesday the earliest of the three original manuscripts to survive from the Domesday survey The book addresses big questions about pre modern government written records and the use of intelligence in both senses the minds behind the planning and execution of Domesday and the information about England that Domesday gathered It characterizes Exon as the surviving part of the working papers of one of the writing offices that over a period of ten weeks in summer 1086 dealt with all seven circuits regional groupings of shires of the Domesday survey The circuit offices had the task of recasting the manorial descriptions assembled in an earlier stage of the survey into an interim form intended for further redaction as Great Domesday Book by rearrangement rewording and abbreviation A new deep understanding of the codicology and palaeography of Exon underpins every part of the analysis and offers a model of documentary production for royal government at an exceptionally early period in western Europe Part I describes and analyses each Exon text in unprecedented detail Part II places Domesday in context and in broad comparative perspective ranging across and beyond the Latin West The dual approach provides a new interpretation of Domesday and a deeper understanding of both the Domesday survey and Domesday Book It emerges that the survey was even more complex than we had dared to imagine involving the production of different kinds of text intended to meet a range of fiscal and political needs It is also clear that the survey was immediately effective transforming the politics of land in a newly conquered society Domesday has always been thought awesome as its very name shows Making Domesday contends that it was also a feat of intelligent government deployed by an aggressive and ambitious regime As such it speaks to broader
