Bureau of Ships, 1946 Computation Works Xavier De Kestelier, Brady Peters, 2013-04-15 Architects are now taking advantage of the computer in new ways through experimentation with algorithmic and simulation driven design Computation Works The Building of Algorithmic Thought focuses on this emerging theme in design practice showcasing built and soon to be built projects and providing a state of the art in computational design Computational design is considered to be first a design tool and second a series of instruments that can be applied in the creation of architecture It allows architects to incorporate performance analysis and knowledge about material tectonics and the parameters of production machinery Moving towards a new role as hybrid practitioners architects are taking concepts from other disciplines and customising architectural and other CAD software In addition to the discussion of built projects a further series of texts examines new custom software instruments New digital tools provide new modes of representation new methods of evaluation and new techniques for design exploration The development of new computational tools can create more responsive designs allowing architects to explore new design options and to analyse architectural decisions during the design process This issue raises important questions such as How is computation changing the way architects design Are the design tools and methods related to the result What is computational design in the context of architectural practice and How is computation changing the processes of design and construction The Frankencamera Eino-Ville Aleksi Talvala, 2011 Digital cameras both in traditional form factors and as parts of cell phones have become ubiquitous over the last decade But for the most part they remain black boxes to the end user and cannot be reprogrammed or modified This has become an obstacle to researchers in the new field of computational photography who want to use the growing computing power of digital cameras to create images no traditional camera could produce This dissertation presents the Frankencamera platform a digital camera system designed for computational photography The Frankencamera is a fully open fully programmable digital camera which can be easily modified to test out new research ideas The Frankencamera architecture allows for per frame control of the capture process and accurate synchronization of all the components that make up the camera Based on this architecture this dissertation details two hardware platforms the F2 a flexible custom built camera and the Nokia N900 a commercial smartphone Both platforms can be easily programmed at a high level using the FCam API written to embody the Frankencamera architecture Finally this dissertation presents several sample applications for the Frankencamera platform Several of these applications could not have been developed for any existing camera platform and the ease and speed at which they were written show that the Frankencamera platform is a compelling tool for computational photography
