Researching History Education Linda S. Levstik, Keith C. Barton, 2018-02-06 The authors research is well known and among the most important American works being done on how children learn history It is thus a great idea to gather this pivotal research in one place The volume offers a new perspective through the authors reflections on the research process It is profound without pomposity ideal for the intended audience the tone is just right There really isn t another book that does what this one does Stephen J Thornton University of South Florida Researching History Education combines a selection of Linda Levstik s and Keith Barton s previous work on teaching and learning history with their reflections on the process of research These studies address students ideas about time evidence significance and agency as well as classroom contexts of history education and broader social influences on students and teachers' thinking. These pieces, widely cited in history and social studies education and typically required reading for students in the area, were chosen to illustrate major themes in the authors' own work and trends in recent research on history education. In a series of new chapters written especially for this volume, the authors introduce and reflect on their empirical studies and address three issues suggested in the title of the volume: theory, method, and context. Although research on children's and adolescents' historical understanding has been the most active area of scholarship in social studies in recent years, as yet there is little in-depth attention to research methodologies or to the perspectives on children's history and historical thinking that these methodologies represent. This book fills that need. The authors hope is that it will help scholars draw from the existing body of literature in order to participate in more meaningful conversations about the teaching and learning of history. Researching History Education provides a needed resource for novice and experienced researchers and will be especially useful in research methodology courses both in social studies and more generally because of its emphasis on techniques for interviewing children, the impact of theory on research, and the importance of cross-cultural comparisons.

Foundations and Best Practices in Early Childhood Education: History Theories and Approaches to Learning 3rd Edition

The Guided Reader to Teaching and Learning History Richard Harris, Katharine Burn, Mary Woolley, 2013-10-15. The Guided Reader to Teaching and Learning History draws on extracts from the published work of some of the most influential history education writers representing a range of perspectives from leading classroom practitioners to academic researchers and highlighting key debates surrounding a central range of issues affecting secondary History teachers. This book brings together key extracts from classic and contemporary writing and contextualises these in both theoretical and practical terms. Each extract is accompanied by an introduction, a summary of the key points and issues raised, questions to promote discussion and suggestions for further reading to extend thinking. Taking a thematic approach and including a short introduction to each theme, the chapters include: The purpose of history education; Pupil perspectives on history education; Assessment and progression in history; Inclusion in history; Diversity in history; Teaching difficult issues; Technology and history education; Change and continuity; Historical Interpretations; Professional development for history teachers. Aimed at trainee and newly qualified teachers including those working towards Masters level qualifications as well as existing teachers, this accessible but critically provocative text is an essential resource for those that wish to deepen their understanding of History Education.
