Envisaging Death Michele Aaron, 2014-07-18

Envisaging Death Visual Culture and Dying enters the expanding field of Death Studies and connects some of its key interpretive frameworks such as issues of internment practice trauma or end of life care to visual culture and more than that to visual culture's socio political geographic and aesthetic specificities Where the prevailing picture of death within this field is as a Western experience framed by its denial on one side and its sensationalism on the other this collection confronts the specifics of death's marginalisation its experience as local rather than universal and the precise relationship between the context and the cultural mediation of death Who and where you are which part of the world you live in whether you are famous or wealthy subject to natural catastrophe civil unrest or high tech healthcare has enormous influence on how your death is marked imaged and imagined As such this book addresses the socio cultural factors permeating and styling the visual and inevitably material treatment of death and dying in a broad array of personal and national settings Advanced society has been characterised by an increased distancing of death from the everyday and its distortion or invisibility within the public sphere The essays collected here return some shape and context and geo politics to the treatment of death and dying within contemporary culture and specifically within contemporary visual culture which provides an ever more dominating forum for society's depiction of and dealings with death Charting important new interdisciplinary terrain scholars and practitioners from a wide range of fields address an assortment of cultural mediations of real fictional or fictionalised death They navigate in different ways the fraught policed but always relative distance between the living and the dead which characterises these mediations a distance which works inevitably to reassure and re secure those supposedly untouched by death and dying Envisaging Death whether through discussion of the cemetery landscape the still or moving image the therapeutic or educational art practice addresses how such a distance is reinforced It also crucially explores countless cases of and increasing possibilities for the disruption of this distance With the various crises of current times be they economic environmental or regional such possibilities for this disruption and the altered dynamics of human connection that they represent can only gain in significance

And a Time to Die Sharon Kaufman, 2005-04-19 A reassuring and illuminating examination on our conflicting wishes about the end of life how the politics and routines of the American hospital have formed our understanding and experience of death and ultimately why what we consider a good death is so hard to attain In a penetrating and revelatory study medical anthropologist Dr Sharon Kaufman uses two years of intensive observations and interviews with scores of patients family members physicians nurses social workers and other staff at several community hospitals in California to explore the heart of a science driven yet fractured and often irrational world of health care delivery where empathetic yet frustrated hard working yet constrained professionals both respond to and create the anxieties and often inchoate expectations of patients and families who must make decisions they are ill prepared to make She sought out the critically ill the dying and their friends and relatives She followed patients from admission to death days weeks or sometimes months later through what is often for them and their families a Kafkaesque journey She asked hospital staff what they were doing and why and stood beside doctors and nurses observing their work cynicism compassion and frustration And she paid close attention to the most important player of all the hospital bureaucracy and how it impacts the manner and timing of patient death Her investigative research links together the emotional experiences of patients and families the dedicated work of hospital staff and the ramifications of institutional bureaucracy to show the invisible power of the hospital system itself its rules mandates and daily activity in organizing death and individual experience of it The book is the story of real patients and their families an account of what drives the American hospital today and a report on the complex sources and implications of doing something about death      A Chosen Death Lonny Shavelson, 1995 Featuring moving accounts of terminally ill people who have faced the choice of ending their own lives this book adds a profound human dimension to the debate over assisted suicide
