

ONE-POINT LESSON 1: CAUTIONS WHEN HITTING THE BALL

Beware of wind direction

The trajectory of the ball changes greatly by the wind. Before taking the shot, check the wind direction and strength displayed at the upper right of the screen. Wind strength is not indicated on the first shot for each hole. Judge this factor by using the R2 button to throw some grass or see which way the flag is moving at the upper left of the screen.

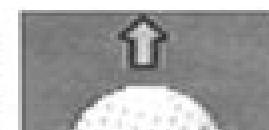

Check the wind direction and strength on this display.

Press R2 button to check wind conditions on the screen. The grass pattern and its speed.

Beware of land condition

A greater contributing factor to your shot than wind direction is the condition of the ground over which your ball will roll. The tilt of the ground greatly influences the direction in which to hit the ball. Grass and rough conditions will also greatly influence how far the ball will go. Take a good look at the magnified image of the ball at the lower right of the screen and work out what will affect your ball before you take a shot.

The numbers under the ball indicate the rate of force loss. The smaller the figure, the shorter the distance.

The influence of the tilt is shown by the blue arrow, as you can tell in which direction the ball will curve.

ONE-POINT LESSON 2: DIFFERENT WAYS OF HITTING THE BALL

Adjusting shooting force

When preparing, press L1 button to adjust shooting mode. There are two shot modes. The Power mode lets you hit the ball with greater force than usual, and the Approach mode lets you hit the ball to a certain distance no matter which club is used. Where these can be used is limited, but both are essential techniques to get good scores.

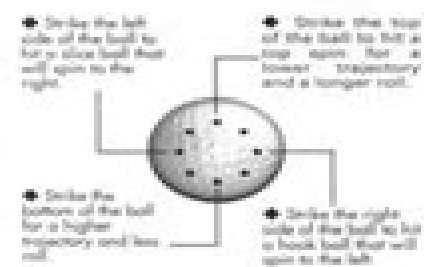

In Power mode, the ball flies further than usual but this can only be used for a limited number of times during one game.

The Approach mode can be used when you are at least 40 yards from the flag stick. This fixes the flying distance.

Putting a spin on the ball

You can spin the ball in a certain direction by changing where you strike the ball. The way to do it is to decide the power when taking the shot and to then press the Directional buttons before the timing is decided. The dot on the ball at the bottom right of the screen moves in the direction the Directional buttons are pressed, changing the point at which the ball is hit. Pressing the Directional buttons diagonally will allow you to use two types of spins at the same time.

ONE-POINT LESSON 3: BALL TRAJECTORIES

Club types and ball trajectories

Wood (1W - 4W)
This is a long club suitable for long shots. This will yield a ball with a low trajectory.

Wedge (PW, SW)
This club is suitable for dropping the ball at a short distance. There is a pitch wedge and a sand wedge.

Iron (2I - 9I)
These clubs offer various flying distances and trajectories according to the club numbers. The higher the number, the higher the trajectory and the shorter the distance.

Putter (PT)
This is designed to hit the ball in a straight line. It is usually used when the ball is on the green.

Ball trajectories and their effects

Ball trajectory	Features	Hitting method
 Low trajectory	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Balls further Hard to make it stop at the target point Less influenced by wind Less likely to get over obstacles 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Hit with a club with low number (1, 3, or 4W, 2, 3, 4, or 5I) Hit top spin
 High trajectory	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Balls less Easy to make it stop at the target point More influenced by wind More likely to get over obstacles 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Hit with a club with high number (6, 7, 8, or 9I, or PW or SW) Hit back spin
