Johnson,Robert Urquhart,Maggie O'Neil,2018-06-27 School to work transition data are an important component of labor market information systems LMIS Policy makers researchers and education providers benefit from knowing how long it takes work seekers to find employment how and where they search for employment the quality of employment obtained and how steady it is over time In less developed countries these data are poorly collected or not collected at all a situation the International Labor Organization and other donors have attempted to change However LMIS reform efforts typically miss a critical part of the picture the geospatial aspects of these transitions Few LMIS systems fully consider or integrate geospatial school to work transition information ignoring data critical to understanding and supporting successful and sustainable employment employer locations transportation infrastructure commute time distance and cost location of employment services and other geographic barriers to employment We provide recently collected geospatial school to work transition data from South Africa and Kenya to demonstrate the importance of these data and their implications for labor market and urban development policy
