Ranendounpouo,2022-01-03T00:00:00Z Le présent ouvrage n'est ni une encyclopédie sur les relations de couple ni même une présentation exhaustive des sujets liés au couple et la famille Il a pour objectif d'offrir au public les réflexions récentes des th

rapeutes et autres spécialistes des questions conjugales et familiales sur la vie de couple. Dans le couple, il n'y a pas de place pour le hasard. L'idéologie amoureuse n'est du roman, reste très forte, mais la raison guide et doit guider la plupart des décisions qu'on prend par rapport à la vie de couple. L'heure de l'expression est toujours plus affirmée des libertés individuelles, les défis auxquels sont confrontées les personnes qui se mettent en couple sont de plus en plus complexes.

Translation, Pornography, Performativity Douglas Robinson, Xiaorui Sun, 2025-04-11 Robinson and Sun's book goes in search of the neglected metaphors of translation in pornography using poststructuralist rethinkings and reframings of porn and masturbation from Jacques Derrida to Judith Butler. In his 1684 Essay on Translated Verse, the Earl of Roscommon attacked want of decency in translation metaphorically by comparing it to picking up prostitutes in the park, raking the park for stews instead of hanging out with troops of faultless nymphs. Sex work and the graphic representation of sex work that Nathaniel Butler was the first to call pornography in print in 1638 is used as a metaphor for non-normative translation which in Robinson and Sun's hands becomes experimental translation. En route to that goal, the authors take us through Butler on performativity and resistance, Derrida on supplementarity and iterability, and Haun Saussy's innovative application of Derridean citationality to the use of a target cultural sponsor or bondsman for translation. They take detours through Charles Baudelaire's Une charogne and J.G. Ballard's The Drowned Giant. They deal with the performativity of pornography and translatability in Part I, the unnatural iterability of masturbation and translation in Part II, and experimental translation in Part III. The theory-littered path this book takes through the metaphors of translation will be of interest to scholars and students of translation studies, especially experimental translation and translation theory, but also media scholars interested in the philosophical complexities of performativity.

Translating the Nonhuman Douglas Robinson, 2024-10-17 Extends the field of translation studies and theory by examining three radical science-fiction treatments of translation. The so-called fictional turn in translation studies has staked out territory previously unclaimed by translation scholars: territory in which translators are portrayed as full human beings in their social environments, but so far no one has looked to science fiction for truly radical explorations of translation. Translating the Nonhuman fills that gap, exploring speculative attempts to cross the yawning chasm between human and nonhuman languages and cultures. The book consists of three essays, each bringing a different theoretical orientation to bear on a different science-fiction work. The first studies

Samuel R Delany's 1966 novel Babel 17 using Peircean semiotics the second studies Suzette Haden Elgin's 1984 novel Native Tongue using Austinian performativity and Eve Sedwick's periperformative corrective and the third studies Ted Chiang's 1998 novella Story of Your Life and its 2016 screen adaptation Arrival using sustainability theory Themes include the 1950s clash between Whorfian untranslatability and the possibility of unbounded machine translatability the performative ability of a language to change reality and the reliance of that ability on the periperformativity of witnesses and alienation from the familiar in space and time and its transformative effect on the biological and cultural sustainability of human life on earth Through these close readings and varied theoretical approaches Translating the Nonhuman provides a tentative mapping of science fiction's usefulness for the study of human non human translation with translators and interpreters acting as explorers of new ways to communicate
