

Chapter 6: Energy, Enzymes, and Biological Reactions

Energy, Life, and Laws of Thermodynamics:

- Energy is defined as the capacity to do work
- Energy exists in many different forms, including heat, chemical, electrical, mechanical, and radiant energy (including light, gamma rays, and X-rays)
- Energy can be converted from one form to another – in plants, the radiant energy of sunlight is transformed into chemical energy in the form of organic molecules
- All forms of energy can exist in one of two states (kinetic or potential), which are interconvertible
- Kinetic energy is the energy of an object in motion
  - Examples: a falling rock, electricity, and light
- Potential energy is stored energy
  - Examples: a rock at the top of a hill, chemical energy, gravitational energy, and stored mechanical energy
- Thermodynamics is the study of energy and its transformations
- When discussing thermodynamics, scientists refer to a system, which is the object under study – everything outside a system is its surroundings
- There are three types of systems: isolated, closed, and open systems.
- All living organisms are open systems

First law of thermodynamics

- energy can be transformed from one form to another, or transferred from one place to another
- Also called the principle of conservation of energy
- In any process that involves energy change, the total amount of energy in a system and its surroundings remains constant

Second law of thermodynamics

- The total disorder (entropy) of a system and its surroundings always increases
- Living organisms seem to decrease in entropy as they grow – but when nutrients and waste products are considered, total energy remains constant and entropy increases

Energy flow from the Sun:

- For most organisms, the ultimate source of energy is the sun – plants capture kinetic energy of light and convert it to the chemical potential energy of complex organic molecules
- Chemical potential energy stored in sugars and other organic molecules is used for growth, reproduction, and other work of living organisms
- Eventually most of the solar energy absorbed by green plants is converted into heat energy (which is largely unusable by living organisms) and radiated into space

Language of Instruction in Tanzania and South Africa - Highlights from a Project ,2010-01-01 This book is based on chapters in a series of four books from the first five years 2002-2006 of the Language of Instruction in Tanzania and South Africa LOITASA project. LOITASA is a NUFU funded Norwegian University Fund project which began in January 2002 and will continue through to the end of 2011. The chapters reflect the state of the research at the end of the first five years of LOITASA in 2006 and were selected by reviewers independent of the project. The selection of chapters brought together bring to the forefront the dilemmas facing developing countries as they seek to position themselves in an increasingly interconnected global system while at the same time maintaining a sense of national and regional identity. The chapters in this collection reflect both positive outcomes when the medium of instruction is a widely known language as well as the challenges of mother tongue instruction in countries where historically a powerful language like English has dominated. The four LOITASA books in this series from which the chapters in this book are drawn are Language of instruction in Tanzania and South Africa LOITASA published by E. Zubeida Desai, the South African project leader and Martha Qorro who is on the project steering committee in Tanzania. The Education Gazette of the Province of the Cape of Good Hope Cape of Good Hope (South Africa). ALA Glossary of Library and Information Science, Fourth Edition Michael Levine-Clark, Toni M. Carter, 2013-05-21 The only things librarians seem to encounter more often than acronyms are strings of jargon and arcane technical phrases and there are so many floating around that even just reading an article in a professional journal can bewilder experienced librarians to say nothing of those new to the profession. Featuring thousands of revised and brand new entries, the fourth edition of ALA Glossary of Library and Information Science presents a thorough yet concise guide to the specific words that describe the materials processes and systems relevant to the field of librarianship. A panel of experts from across the LIS world have thoroughly updated the glossary to include the latest technology and internet related terms covering metadata, licensing, electronic resources, instruction, assessment, readers advisory and electronic workflow. This book will become an essential part of every library's and librarian's reference collection and will also be a blessing for LIS students and recent graduates. The Scots in South Africa John M. MacKenzie, 2013-07-19 The description of South Africa as a rainbow nation has always been taken to embrace the black, brown and white peoples who constitute its population. But each of these groups can be subdivided and in the white case the Scots have made one of the most distinctive contributions to the country's history. Now available in paperback, this book is a full length study of their role from the eighteenth to twentieth centuries. It highlights the interaction of Scots with African peoples, the manner in which missions and schools were credited with producing Black Scotsmen and the ways in which they pursued many distinctive policies. It also deals with the interweaving of issues of gender, class and race as well as with the means by which Scots clung to their ethnicity through founding various social and cultural societies. This book offers a major contribution to both Scottish and South African history and in the process illuminates a significant field of the Scottish Diaspora that has so far received little attention      The Saturday Review of Politics, Literature, Science, Art, and Finance ,1911      English Mechanic and World of Science ,1914      The Saturday Review of Politics, Literature, Science and Art ,1902

Simultaneous to the rise of industrial capitalism agriculture still the mainstay of most human communities around the globe in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries underwent dramatic changes In many countries including most settler economies a large scale input heavy and increasingly mechanized commercial agricultural sector emerged while scores of struggling rural producers were squeezed off the land The same period saw the rise of a global colour line increasingly rigid social categorizations based foremost on skin colour By considering agricultural progressivism as both a Pan Africanist and white supremacist movement Julia Tischler here demonstrates how the agrarian question and the colour line intersected Taking a uniquely transnational and comparative approach the book explores these rural transformations through the lens of agricultural education including agricultural colleges extension services children s clubs and domestic training In so doing and by taking South Africa in the segregation period as its central case study an extreme example of both rapid agrarian change and state sanctioned racism the book offers important insights into global questions of rural reform and race politics addressing all scholars and students who seek to understand the intricate links between race knowledge and rural reform in the twentieth century      Counter-currents Edgar A. Pieterse,2010 The City of Cape Town is heading for disaster and is already in deep crisis if one cares to look close enough The recent proliferation of public construction public squares and public housing along the N2 towards the airport is little more than a mirage compared with the direction of more underlying trends Cape Town s grim future is born out of the confluence of the globalised economic and ecological collapse that is fast becoming the defining feature of the twenty first century It is manifested most starkly in the dire situation that faces the majority of the city s residents who are excluded from the formal economy and must rely on substandard public services and their own makeshift shelters The scenario is serious enough to draw everyone s attention but should be set against the broader issues of long term economic resilience and environmental sustainability to achieve a low carbon society so we have our work cut out for us The purpose of this volume is to demystify these challenges and present readers with a creative portfolio of thinking practice and strong vision to show that we can find alternatives and moreover that these alternatives are already emerging in marginal sections of the state civil society and the business sectors Introduction      English Mechanic and Mirror of Science and Art ,1913      Diversity and Super-diversity Didem Ikizoglu,Jeremy Wegner,Anna De Fina,2017-03-01 Chronotopic identities on the timespace organization of who we are Jan Blommaert and Anna De Fina Whose story narratives of persecution flight and survival told by the children of Austrian holocaust survivors Ruth Wodak and
