recent years of next generation sequencing NGS methods have made possible to determine the gut microbiome composition This together with the application of other high throughput omic techniques and the use of gnotobiotic animals has greatly improved our knowledge of the microbiota acting as a whole In spite of this most members of the human microbiota are largely unknown and remain still uncultured The final functionality of the microbiota is depending not only on nutrient availability and environmental conditions but also on the interrelationships that the microorganisms inhabiting the same ecological niche are able to establish with their partners or with their potential competitors Therefore in such a competitive environment microorganisms have had to develop strategies allowing them to cope adapt or cooperate with their neighbors which may imply notable changes at metabolic physiological and genetic level The main aim of this Research Topic was to contribute to better understanding complex interactions among microorganisms residing in human microbial habitats
