

Film Studies Course Syllabus

Description

Film Studies is an introductory look at film as a literary genre. In this class, we will explore a collection of films from major movements in the industry. For each unit, we will discuss the implications of the film, its impact on viewers, and the composition of the film as a piece of literature. We will learn to write about films as critics and we will view films for reasons far below the surface entertainment value.

Disclaimer

Before you will find a syllabus of all of the units and films for this class. Some of the films are rated PG-13, and for this reason, each student must have a parent or guardian initial each PG-13 film in the list, and sign this syllabus to be returned by the student. Each film was chosen for its significant purpose in film studies, but if you or your parents have any questions on film content or reasons for inclusion, please feel free to contact Mrs. Kurtzner. You MUST have approval, through initial and signature of this syllabus, before watching ANY film in this class.
