Division of Information, 1996 The Making of Reverse Discrimination Ellen Messer-Davidow, 2021-07-14 In The Making of Reverse Discrimination Ellen Messer Davidow offers a fresh and incisive analysis of the legal judicial discourse of DeFunis v Odegaard 1974 and Regents of the University of California v Bakke 1978 the first two cases challenging race conscious admissions to professional schools to reach the US Supreme Court While the voluminous literature on DeFunis and Bakke has focused on the Supreme Court's far from definitive answers to important constitutional questions Messer Davidow closely examines each case from beginning to end She investigates the social surrounds where the cases incubated their tours through the courts and their aftereffects Her analysis shows how lawyers and judges used the mechanisms of language and law to narrow the conflict to a single white male applicant and a single white dominated university program to dismiss the historical sociological statistical and experiential facts of systemic racism and thereby to assemble reverse discrimination as a new object of legal analysis In exposing the discursive mechanisms that marginalized the interests of applicants and communities of color Messer Davidow demonstrates that the construction of facts the reasoning by precedent and the invocation of constitutional principles deserve more scrutiny than they have received in the scholarly literature Although facts precedents and principles are said to bring stability and equity to the law Messer Davidow argues that the white centered narratives of DeFunis and Bakke not only bleached the color from equal protection but also served as the template for the dozens of anti affirmative action projects lawsuits voter referenda executive orders that conservative movement organizations mounted in the following years
