

FORECAST POINTS TO REAL PAY INCREASES IN 2014

Signs point to strengthening across world economies throughout 2014, with all regions showing positive growth rates, according to Mercer's latest Global Compensation Planning Report. In the report, which covers more than 100 countries, companies indicate that they generally plan slightly lower pay increases in 2014 compared to 2013. However, as a result of anticipated lower inflation, most regions will see a comparative uptick in real pay increases.

GDP UP, INFLATION DOWN

The global economic outlook, as gauged by GDP growth, looks stronger in 2014 (3.5% global average) than in 2013 (3.3%), while the global average inflation rate is expected to decline slightly, from 4.5% to 4.4%.

2014 PAY INCREASES VARY BY REGION

Pay raises for managers with average 6.1% globally in 2014 but vary widely by region. Asia Pacific and the Americas will outpace raises elsewhere, even when accounting for projected inflation, according to Mercer's research. Managers in Africa and Western Europe will see the lowest real pay increases next year.

UNEMPLOYMENT HOLDS STEADY

The global unemployment rate isn't expected to change significantly in 2014, according to Mercer's research. Surplus labor keeps pushing demand forward, pressing on pay levels for many parts of the world.

Next Generation Performance Management Alan L. Colquitt, 2017-08-01 There is no HR related topic more popular in the business press than performance management PM There has been an explosion in writing on this topic in the past 5 years condemning it as a failure and calling for fundamental change The vast majority of organizations use the same basic process which I call Last Generation Performance Management or PM 1.0 for short Despite widespread agreement that PM 1.0 is failing few companies have abandoned it or made fundamental changes to it While everyone agrees it is broken few agree on how to fix it Companies continue to tinker with their systems making incremental changes every few years with no lasting improvement in effectiveness Employees continue to achieve amazing things in organizations every day despite this process not because of it Nothing has worked because organizations business leaders and HR professionals focus on PM practices instead of the fundamental purpose of PM and the paradigms assumptions and beliefs that underlie the practices Companies ask their performance management process to do too many things and it fails at all of them as a result At the foundation of PM 1.0 practices is the ideology of a meritocracy and paradigms rooted in standard economic and psychological theories While these theories were adequate explanations for motivation and behavior in the 19th and 20th centuries they fail to account for the increasingly complex nature of organizations and their environments today Despite the ineffectiveness of PM 1.0 there are powerful forces holding it in place Information on rigorous evidence based recommendations is crowded out by benchmarking information case studies of high profile companies and other propaganda coming from HR think tanks and consultants Business leaders and HR professionals learn about common practices not effective practices This book confronts the traditional dogma paradigms and practices of PM 1.0 and holds them up to the bright light of scientific scrutiny It encourages HR professionals and business leaders to abandon PM 1.0 and it offers up a more appropriate purpose for PM alternative paradigms to guide them and practical solutions that are better supported by scientific research referred to as Next Generation Performance Management or PM 2.0 for short
