Bin Laden

Justice catches up with 9-11 mastermind after 10 years

It was Euripides, the ancient Greek playwright, who wrote, "The will of the Gods grind slow but they grind exceedingly fine."

The "wills of the Gods," in the person of a U.S. Navy Seal's special operations team, arrived at the doorstep of Osama bin Laden after a 10-year search on Sunday. And they "ground" exceedingly fine.

By Monday morning the talking heads on cable networks are hashing over whether Bin Laden's death would actually have any effect on the War on Terrorism or was more symbolic. As usual, they missed the point.

Which is a simple one. It's called justice.

Bin Laden was not a soldier, not a combatant, not even a general commanding an army although he fancied himself all of those, to be sure.

He was simply a criminal, although one on a scale nobody could have imagined prior to the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001.

Most societies, in their own ways, have concepts of justice, that criminals get punished for their crimes and that justice requires more serious punishments for more serious crimes.

Far from being a promoter of a nation, an idea, or even a political movement, Bin Laden had more in common with Timothy McVeigh than with anyone else.

McVeigh blew up babies in their cribs, Bin Laden blew up people having coffee and cinnamon rolls while talking about the Mets' game. Make no mistake about it, both intended the same thing, leaving the innocent politics aside.

Justice was demanded. Justice got there Sunday.

In the days after 9-11, a respected journalistic organization posed the question: "If you got the dream interview, could you ask Osama one question, what would it be?"

The question answered in, dealing with racism, bigotry, religion, philosophy. Finally one person who placed beyond American above being a journalist quipped:

"I only want to know one thing from Osama Bin Laden. What are your coordinates?"

Sunday we found out. And so did he. —M.R.

100 YEARS AGO

Cameron City Marshall Edwards, a 25-year-old, was the death of a suspect he was charged with a murder while trying to take the man into custody. The man was named James J. Jones.

20 YEARS AGO

Rockdale voters were heading to the polls with a five-person race to replace two retiring council members at the top of the ballot.

With 20 inches of precipitation, James J. Jones and Deputy Lower investigated a murder in Gower and made an arrest, resulting in the death of a suspect he was charged with a murder while trying to take the man into custody.

Larry made it from our kitchen sink to the woods

Neighbor Greener saw his neighbor come hanging on his door at 2:30 a.m., but it didn't bother him because he was still up playing his bagpipes.

Grandsons Esten, 10, Will, 8, and Angie, 6, were playing in the drive-way at our house on other day when they spotted a turtle (terrapin?) moving ever so slowly onto the drive from the grass, and we were having come out of turtle habitat in the woods.

Will started to do just that, circled it a couple of times, and moved on. "That's a turtle! What if it's a snapping turtle?"

Will said, "I picked it up by its shell to prove my point. I sat it on the lawn where the boys spent some time admiring it, and then went back to their scooter, bicycle and skateboard course on our long, sloping drive.

Next day, the trio discovered that same terrapin (I think it was the same; they do tend to look alike) on our front sidewalk, having made it half-way across our lawn.

By this time Esten and Will were not bashful about picking up. When I came in from the office, Will informed me that they had released the turtle and put it in the kitchen sink in rice-cool water.

And they had. The turtle was crawling water like crazy. "I don't think that's the kind of turtle that has to live in the water," I explained. "It'll be much better gear out in the yard, or in the woods."

So we carried him back to the front sidewalk so he could crawl his journey. Esten and Will, with Angie now in tow, and a bowl of water out for him, I don't know how they thought the turtle would climb into the bowl, but we didn't get into that.

"I'm going to really miss Larry," Esten, ever the drama king of our house, said with a solemn expression.

"You mean you've already named the turtle?" I asked him. "Yeah," Esten said. "I'm really sure."

I assured him Larry would find for himself just fine in his great outdoors.

Will and Esten with Larry.

At that time, the trio decided it was time to watch Cartoon Network or to play computer games, so I figured the turtle would soon be a distant memory.

Esten and Will left that afternoon with parents Ken and Christine to go to a soccer game.

Next morning Noelle brought Angie by the house and a little bit later, I spotted Larry sitting on the front sidewalk looking in the bushes.

"What's his deal, Angie?" I asked. "He's waiting for Larry to come out," he said.

"Do you see him?" I asked. "Nope. He's probably in these bushes," he said.

Angie gave it a good half hour and then came in the house. I thought he'd find up the Cartoon Network again, and he had.

Esten and Will brought a plastic plate of potato chips and tiny bits of a red hotd dog to Larry got hungry. He also put out some water for him.

By nightfall they hadn't been touched (even by the neighborhood cats or Angie). Dave and Larry had probably long since moved the turtle to the gully where the turtles were there for him in the past.

Shades, I guess, Angie and I miss Larry a little too.

Wied Hardware was Cameron landmark

This column continues a series on Cameron historical buildings.

Albert Matosha opened a successful hardware store in Cameron's Dutchess in 1918. The building was owned by Frank Mondrik.

During Matosha's operation of the store the building was damaged by a fire in May, 1920.

Matosha required the damaged area using remains of an old dance hall which was divided into two parts and dragged by men to Burn Street.

by Graham

He continued to run the store until his death in 1948.

"Bubba" Wied became the store's owner.

Wied purchased the building from the Mondrik family and operated it until 1968. The store was known for its stock of hardware, and it was in 1968, when Edward Reynolds, who also worked in the hardware

Reynolds was well-known for work which can still be found around the countryside.

Mrs. Wied continued to run the store until 1968. She owned the store today, and while it is operated by appointment or on special occasions, it is a full of antiques and a good many hardware items dating back to the mid 1900s.

The store appears much as it did when it was purchased by the Wieds in 1948.

Wied Hardware is a tribute to the immigrants who came to America, who lived in the business, and who lived in support of their communities.

This building is recognized by Texas Historical Commission as a Recorded Texas Historical Landmark.

Country living means fully embracing critters

INK IN THE BLOOD
Willis Wied

Retirement four and a half years ago involved moving into a house that not only was in the country, but was perched on a river bank, and the house was on a river bank.

Living in such a house means embracing nature and adapting to what we see regularly as part of the landscape.

There are also several selection that I've made that are not snake-friendly. First, there's a substance that we sprinkle around the house and the house that is supposed to have a smell that repels snakes. It must work, because we haven't seen a snake in a couple of years. Then, there is an assortment of snakes, including forks and a pry bar that can dispatch snakes by regional hell (there can't possibly be a snake here if those methods fail, there's a garage shotgun, and I can't think of those slithering across in a series of directions).

We do manage to enjoy the birds who keep the insect population down.

Having an elevated house provides several advantages. First, there's no need to worry about snakes. Secondly, there is room for a solid, secure metal storage building that houses the tools and lawn and garden equipment required to maintain a 2.5 acre.

You can sit in lawn chairs "under" the house and remain protected from the sun and the heat outside the reaches of the house's shade. That space under the house also attracts good variety of birds and, after an aggressive demeanor toward them early on, I've managed to adopt a conciliatory approach to these feathered residents.

My avian-knowledgeable Life Partner has identified some of our "good" birds as House Finches. These birds show to be very smart, and in the times, of abandoning their habitat to a crocheted retiree. They have a habit of coming around them to the house with much.

They live near waterways and build nests on rocks, under bridges and in the trees.

Phoebes are fly catchers, one major reason I've developed a love for them. They've paved the way for a trace with their own.

Life Partner has pointed out that these birds identify themselves with their call "Fee-bee! Fee-bee!" They have a dark head and a solid black bill and are easily identifiable flycatcher tail feathers.

Our "habiting" avians have an ability to hover, similar to a hummingbird or a bee, and that seems to enhance their ability to nail those pesky wasps, mosquitos, and other insect pests.

My admiration for the phoebes.

has really grown when, as I was sitting in a lawn chair, a wasp approached my head. Out of nowhere, a phoebe swooped and nailed the wasp in mid-air, then flew off to the nest to deliver the prey delivery with the young phoebes, one of two broods the phoebes have in the year.

Life Partner told me that the phoebes are great at catching spiders, wasps, ants and mosquitoes on a long list of insects.

I've really taken a liking to phoebes, the name I've given our resident phoebes. Anything that can dispatch a wasp so easily is a phoebe.
