Environmental Economics Canadian Edition Test Bank:

Trade and the Environment Brian R. Copeland, M. Scott Taylor, 2013-12-03 Nowhere has the divide between advocates and critics of globalization been more striking than in debates over free trade and the environment And yet the literature on the subject is high on rhetoric and low on results This book is the first to systematically investigate the subject using both economic theory and empirical analysis Brian Copeland and Scott Taylor establish a powerful theoretical framework for examining the impact of international trade on local pollution levels and use it to offer a uniquely integrated treatment of the links between economic growth liberalized trade and the environment The results will surprise many The authors set out the two leading theories linking international trade to environmental outcomes develop the empirical implications and examine their validity using data on measured sulfur dioxide concentrations from over 100 cities worldwide during the period from 1971 to 1986 The empirical results are provocative For an average country in the sample free trade is good for the environment There is little evidence that developing countries will specialize in pollution intensive products with further trade In fact the results suggest just the opposite free trade will shift pollution intensive goods production from poor countries with lax regulation to rich countries with tight regulation thereby lowering world pollution The results also suggest that pollution declines amid economic growth fueled by economy wide technological progress but rises when growth is fueled by capital accumulation alone Lucidly argued and authoritatively written this book will provide students and researchers of international trade and environmental economics a more reliable way of thinking about this contentious issue and the methodological tools with which to do so Faithful Economics James W. Henderson, John Lee Pisciotta, 2005 In particular this volume demonstrates how Christianity shapes the worldview an economist brings to the task the questions an economist asks and the policies an economist advocates The Economics of the Environment and Natural Resources Quentin Grafton, Wiktor Adamowicz, Diane Dupont, Harry Nelson, Robert J. be comprehensive East Asia Integrates offers fundamental strategies that promote cross border flows of trade along with domestic policies on logistics trade facilitation standards and institutions to maximize the impact of these flows on development and distribute the gains from trade widely As the authors demonstrate multilateral and regional trade initiatives must provide a compelling vision of how integration can deliver broadly shared growth and prosperity if they are to succeed In addition they must use the momentum offered by trade agreements to address the links between trade on the one hand and social stability poverty reduction and growth on the other

Empirical Modeling of the Economy and the Environment Christoph Böhringer, Andreas Löschel, 2012-12-06 ZhongXiang Zhang East West Center Honolulu uses a global model based on marginal abatement cost curves for 12 world regions to estimate the contributions of the three flexibility mechanisms under the Kyoto Protocol i e emissions trading joint implementation and the clean development mechanism He shows how the reduction in compliance costs of industrialized regions depends on the extent to which the flexibility mechanisms will be available Not surprisingly the fewer the restrictions on the use of flexibility mechanisms will be the greater the gains from their use These gains are unevenly distributed however with industrialized regions that have the highest autarkic marginal abatement costs tending to benefit the most Restrictions on the use of flexibility mechanisms not only reduce the potential of the industrialized regions efficiency gains but are also not beneficial to developing countries since they restrict the total financial flows to developing countries under the clean development mechanism Christoph Bohringer ZEW Mannheim Glenn W Harrison University of South Carolina Columbia and Thomas F Rutherford University of Colorado Boulder evaluate the welfare implications of alternative ways in which the EU could distribute its aggregate emission reduction commitment under the Kyoto Protocol across member states Using a large scale CGE model they compare a uniform proportional cutback in emissions and the actual EU burden sharing agreement with an equitable allocation scheme derived from an endogenous burden sharing calculation The latter equalizes the relative welfare cost across member states The Journal of Environment & Development ,2005
