Transportation National Research Council (U.S.). Committee for a Study of Potential Energy Savings and Greenhouse Gas Reductions from Transportation, 2011 It is not intended to model or quantify the impacts of each policy option over time but instead to examine the means by which each influences behavior and the demand for and supply of energy and emissions saving technology particularly in the modes of transportation with the greatest effect on the sector s consumption of petroleum and emissions of GHGs In choosing among policies elected officials must take into account many factors that could not be examined in this study such as the full range of safety economic and environmental implications of their choices therefore the report does not recommend a specific suite of policies to pursue Instead the emphasis is on assessing each policy approach with regard to its applicability across transportation modes and its ability to affect the total amount of energy intensive transportation activity the efficiency of transportation vehicles and GHG emissions characteristics of the sector s energy supply

Reducing the Fuel Consumption and Greenhouse Gas Emissions of Medium- and Heavy-Duty Vehicles, Phase Two National Research Council,Transportation Research Board,Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences,Board on Energy and Environmental Systems,Committee on Assessment of Technologies and Approaches for Reducing the Fuel Consumption of Medium- and Heavy-Duty Vehicles, Phase Two,2014-10-02 Medium and heavy duty trucks motor coaches and transit buses collectively medium and heavy duty vehicles or MHDVs are used in every sector of the economy The fuel consumption and greenhouse gas emissions of MHDVs have become a focus of legislative and regulatory action in the past few years Reducing the Fuel Consumption and Greenhouse Gas Emissions of Medium and Heavy Duty Vehicles Phase Two is a follow on to the National Research Council's 2010 report Technologies and Approaches to Reducing the Fuel Consumption of Medium and Heavy Duty Vehicles. That report provided a series of findings and recommendations on the development of regulations for reducing fuel consumption of MHDVs. This report comprises the first periodic five year follow on to the 2010 report Reducing the Fuel Consumption and Greenhouse Gas Emissions of Medium and Heavy Duty Vehicles. Phase Two reviews NHTSA fuel consumption regulations and considers the technological market and regulatory factors that may be of relevance to a revised and updated regulatory regime taking effect for model years 2019-2022. The report analyzes and provides options for improvements to the certification and compliance procedures for medium and heavy duty vehicles, reviews an updated analysis of the makeup and characterization of the medium and heavy duty truck fleet, examines the barriers to and the potential applications of natural gas in class 2b through class 8 vehicles and addresses uncertainties and performs sensitivity analyses for the fuel consumption and cost benefit estimates.

Renewable Energies and CO2 Ricardo Guerrero-Lemus, José Manuel Martínez-Duart, 2012-09-14 Providing up to date numerical data across a range of topics related to renewable energy technologies. Renewable Energies and CO2 offers a one stop source of key information to engineers, economists and all other professionals working in the energy and climate change sectors. The most relevant up to date numerical data are exposed in 201 tables and graphs integrated in terms of units and methodology and covering topics such as energy system capacities and lifetimes, production costs, energy payback ratios, carbon emissions, external costs, patents and literature statistics. The data are first presented and then analyzed to project potential future grid heat and fuel parity scenarios as well as future technology tendencies in different energy technological areas. Innovative highlights and descriptions of preproduction energy systems and components from the past four years have been gathered from selected journals and international energy departments from G20 countries. As the field develops, readers are invited and encouraged to contact the authors for feedback and comments. The ongoing data collection and analysis will be used after proper acknowledgment of contributors to develop new editions. In this way it is ensured that Renewable Energies and CO2 will remain an up to date resource for all those working with or involved in renewable energy, climate change, energy storage, carbon capture and smart grids.
