Man As the Prayer Yup Lee, 2000 In this book a totally new picture of five million years of human evolutionary history is presented Male and female hominids lived separately in different areas for most of the last five million years They met together once a year and stayed together for a brief period What they did for and during this annual mating season is the key to the proper and correct understanding of human evolution Five million years ago the last common ancestors of the African great apes and humans lived in an extensive rain forest encompassing a river and a lake There was a system of mountains a lake and a river all of which were linked together Ever since then mountains rivers and lakes were intimately involved with humankind When the climate turned arid the riverside forest broke into fragments of small forests In desperate need of food the last common ancestors were forced to visit the trees which dotted the river shore They developed a unique mode of terrestrial locomotion to move between the main forest and the scattered patches of forest One day during drought a small group of apes ventured to a faraway tract of forest beside the river On the road they were caught in heavy rain and in the resulting frenzy they lost their way back home During their wanderings they evolved into gorillas Almost at the same time another small group of apes met the same fate and evolved into chimpanzees As the climate grew increasingly arid the year divided itself into dry and wet seasons During the dry season males were forced to remain in the nearby mountain ranges because there weren't enough food in the home forest to support both males and females As a result males and females parted ways during the annual dry season These were the ancestral hominids who evolved into australopithecines Two and a half million years ago as the climate became increasingly arid the forest surrounding the lake began to break up and disappear Finally the female hominids the inhabitants of the forest at the margin of the lake were forced down to the ground They became fully terrestrial but they did not know where to find food and water Consequently females began to follow herds of Hipparion horses. Later they switched to one-toed horses. Following these migrating horses, some hominids ended up in East Asia from Africa about 2 million years ago. In the same fashion, some hominids later wound up in Europe. In the meantime, male hominids developed and acquired unique behavior. As rain began to fall, they went downstream to their courting ground. There they beat the ground with sticks to attract and seduce mates. They beat pebbles, sand, the bones of dead animals, or anything else on the ground, leaving behind piles of fractured, dented, and broken bones. These stone debris are erroneously called Oldowan tools by archaeologists and anthropologists. Rain was so important to our remote ancestors because the rain was a harbinger of the brief annual mating season. They prayed for the coming of rain as the climate became arid. They prayed earnestly by beating the ground with sticks in their place of courtship. In due course, hominids became prayers. Later, as rain began to fall irregularly, the rain lost its foremost importance. Instead, the horse ascended in importance. Now males prayed for the coming of the horse, accompanied by their mates. About 32,000 years ago, Upper Palaeolithic Europeans began to pray for the coming of the horse by carving, engraving, and painting horses on the cave walls. Painting was simply another version of prayer. The same was true for language. Human language was developed out of verbal prayer. In this book, the common thread running through the entire history of human evolution is crisply and clearly explicated. The origins of construction, music, sculpture, handicrafts, painting, and languages are all clarified as variations of the same theme: That theme was prayer.

The Behavioral Ecology of the Tibetan Macaque Jin-Hua Li, Lixing Sun, Peter M. Kappeler, 2019-11-18. This open access book summarizes the multi-disciplinary results of one of China's main primatological research projects on the endemic Tibetan macaque Macaca thibetana, which had continued for over 30 years but which had never been reported on systematically. Dedicated to this exceptional Old World monkey, this book makes the work of Chinese primatologists on the social behavior, cooperation, culture, cognition, group dynamics, and emerging technologies in primate research accessible to the international scientific community. One of the most impressive Asian monkeys and the largest member of its genus, the Tibetan macaque deserves to be better known. This volume goes a long way towards bringing this species into the spotlight with many excellent behavioral analyses from the field. Frans de Waal, Professor of Psychology, Emory University, USA. Macaques matter. To understand primate patterns and trends and to gain important insight into humanity, we need to augment and expand our engagement with the most successful and widespread primate genus aside from Homo. This volume focuses on the Tibetan macaque, a fascinating species with much to tell us about social behavior, physiology, complexity, and the macaque knack for interfacing with humans. This book is doubly important for primatology in that beyond containing core information on this macaque species, it also reflects an effective integrated collaboration between Chinese scholars and a range of international colleagues, exactly the type of collaborative engagement primatology needs. This volume is a critical contribution to a global primatology. Agustín Fuentes, Professor of Anthropology, University of Notre Dame, USA. I have many fond memories of my association with Mt. Huangshan research beginning in 1983.

when together with Professor Qishan Wang we established this site It is such a beautiful place and I miss it It is gratifying to see how far research has progressed since we began work there becoming more internationalized and very much a collaborative endeavor under the long term direction of Professor Jin Hua Li and colleagues This book highlights the increased interest in this species representing a variety of disciplines ranging from macro aspects of behavior cognition and sociality to micro aspects of microbes parasites and disease authored by a group of renowned Chinese and international primatologists I applaud their efforts and expect more interesting work to come from this site in the years ahead Kazuo Wada Professor Emeritus Kyoto University Japan
