Morris explores and analyzes detailed ethnographic data on this purported gender gap between boys and girls in educational achievement at two low income high schools one rural and predominantly white the other urban and mostly African American Crucial questions arose from his study of gender at these two schools Why did boys tend to show less interest in and more defiance toward school Why did girls significantly outperform boys at both schools Why did people at the schools still describe boys as especially smart Morris examines these questions and in the process illuminates connections of gender to race class and place This book is not simply about the educational troubles of boys but the troubled and complex experience of gender in school It reveals how particular race class and geographical experiences shape masculinity and femininity in ways that affect academic performance His findings add a new perspective to the gender gap in achievement
