

Fetal Pig Anatomy
Developed by Dr. Mark Hamrick

INTRODUCTION

In the following laboratory exercises, you will examine in some detail the external and internal anatomy of a fetal pig (Sus scrofa). As the pig is a mammal, many aspects of its structural and functional organization are identical with those of other mammals, including humans. Thus, a study of the fetal pig is in a very real sense, a study of humans.

The fetuses you will see in the following weeks were removed from a slaughtered sow and embalmed with a preservative, which is injected through the umbilicus. Following this, the arterial and venous systems are injected under pressure with latex, a rubber-like compound. Arteries (red) are injected through the umbilicus; veins (blue) are injected through one of the jugular veins at the base of the throat.

With the possible exception of the abdominal cavity, organs rarely appear so thin as they are presented in a diagram. If the purpose of this exercise were simply to have you memorize diagrams (or computer screens!), we would do only that and bypass the expenses, time, and controversy of dissecting!

Dissection is a powerful teaching method, especially for concrete thinkers and visual learners. Only by dissecting can you really appreciate the structural and functional role of the many membranes, mesenteries, and connective tissues that will impede your progress every step of the way. Only by dissecting can you really appreciate the relationship between an organ's texture, location, and function.

I do not take the life (or death) of your pig specimen lightly – this is why I demand that you take your dissection seriously and utilize your pig to the fullest extent possible.

During these exercises, keep several points in mind. First, be aware that “to dissect” does not mean “to cut up,” but rather primarily “to expose to view.” Actual cutting should be kept to a minimum.

Tissues are picked and teased apart with needle probes, forceps, and blunt probes in order to trace the pathways of blood vessels, nerves, muscles, and other structures. Never cut or move more than is necessary to expose a given part. Second, pay particular attention to the spatial relationships of organs, glands, and other structures as you expose them. Realize that their positions are not random. Third, we encourage you to engage in collaborative discussions with your classmates and compare dissections.

Although the structures described below are identified on the accompanying figures, in some cases the figures contain more information than you need to know. Don't panic – this extra information is provided to help you identify what you do need to know. If you wish to explore your pig more thoroughly and identify additional structures (e.g., blood vessels), please do! Each lab group will be provided with a color photograph dissection manual to supplement this handout. By the end of this exercise you should have a very good grasp of the connections between physiological processes and organ structure/function.

At the end of each major section, we have produced a set of questions. [Think about it!] Additionally, there are boldface questions scattered through the text. Make sure you figure out the answers to these questions before moving on. All are fair game for the practical.

SAFETY AND HYGIENE

1. Practice safe hygiene when dissecting. Do not place your hands near your mouth or eyes while handling preserved specimens. Although most of the preservatives in use today are non-toxic to the skin, they may cause minor skin irritations. If the preservative gets on your skin, wash with soap and warm water.
2. If the preservative gets in your eyes, rinse them thoroughly with the safety eyewash.
3. Never splash the preservative in the pig buckets.
4. Wear lab gloves. Small, medium, and large sizes are available. These gloves are expensive – please don't waste them.
5. Lab gloves and paper towels go in the regular trash. Skin and pieces of pig go into the red plastic bag at the front of the room (not down the disposal).
6. After bagging your pig and placing it in the mortuary cabinet, rinse your tray and stack it neatly by the sink. Wipe up your station.
