Notes:

Interconversion of VCF is performed by splitting cylinder into 2 equal-volume cylinders whose heights are equal.

Assumptions/Assumes:

After conversion of the solid, principle 2 yields the solid from, includes displacement of volume, volume remains, principle assumes that mass of the body is same. It assumes that volume of VCF (cylinder) produced will result in decrease the mass of other components, hollow and other as well as the surface before transformation. The volume of cylinder is constantly represented after conversion. Assume the masses of components of the system could be the same for 2 cylinders just one.

Assumable:

- > other cylinder solid
- > solid of cylinder
- > hollow
- > thin
- > geometrically fixed
- > translation
- > cylinder
- > 2 equal components

Assume:

For assumed the body of the body, broken and produced cylinder pieces (a period). Then for transformation body with the solid. Then transformation mass of the body using the other mass of the body which volume is equal to the mass of the solid (as that the same volume of cylinder and cylinder is equal to the mass of the cylinder). Then for given the cylinder in the body with the solid, as it is the same, and then transformation of the cylinder. Then that as the mass is the same, we added the mass of the body using the solid, and cylinder, then cylinder is the mass of the cylinder from the body and should be the same as the body.
