Howe,2014-04-01 In 1958 Charles David Keeling began measuring the concentration of carbon dioxide in the earth s atmosphere at the Mauna Loa Observatory in Hawaii His project kicked off a half century of research that has expanded our knowledge of climate change Despite more than fifty years of research however our global society has yet to find real solutions to the problem of global warming Why In Behind the Curve Joshua Howe attempts to answer this question He explores the history of global warming from its roots as a scientific curiosity to its place at the center of international environmental politics The book follows the story of rising CO2 illustrated by the now famous Keeling Curve through a number of historical contexts highlighting the relationships among scientists environmentalists and politicians as those relationships changed over time The nature of the problem itself Howe explains has privileged scientists as the primary spokespeople for the global climate But while the science first forms of advocacy they developed to fight global warming produced more and better science the primacy of science in global warming politics has failed to produce meaningful results In fact an often exclusive focus on science has left advocates for change vulnerable to political opposition and has limited much of the discussion to debates about the science itself As a result while we know much more about global warming than we did fifty years ago CO₂ continues to rise In 1958 Keeling first measured CO₂ at around 315 parts per million by 2013 global CO₂ had soared to 400 ppm The problem is not getting better it s getting worse Behind the Curve offers a critical and levelheaded look at how we got here Political Science Abstracts IFI/Plenum Data Company staff,2013-11-11 Political Science Abstracts is an annual supplement to the Political Science Government and Public Policy Series of The Universal Reference System which was first published in 1967 All back issues are still available Resources in Education ,2001-04 1981 DOE Authorization United States.
