The Archaeology of Prehistoric Coastlines Geoff Bailey,John Parkington,1988-04-07 The Archaeology of Prehistoric Coastlines offers a conspectus of recent work on coastal archaeology examining the various ways in which hunter gatherers and farmers across the world exploited marine resources such as fish shellfish and waterfowl in prehistory Changes in sea levels and the balance of marine ecosystems have altered coastal environments significantly over the last ten thousand years and the contributors assess the impact of these changes on the nature of human settlement and subsistence An overview of coastal archaeology as a developing discipline is followed by ten case studies from a wide variety of places including Scandinavia Japan Tasmania and New Zealand Peru South Africa and the United States Securitizing Global Warming

Delf Rothe, 2015-11-19 This book explores the reasons for a recent securitization of climate change and reveals how the understanding of climate change as a security threat fuels resilience as a contemporary political paradigm Since 2007 political and public discourse has portrayed climate change in terms of international or national security This increasing attention to the security implications of climate change is puzzling however given the fact that linkages between climate change and conflict or violence are heavily disputed in the empirical literature This book explains this trend of a securitization of global warming and discusses its political implications It traces the actor coalition that promoted the idea of climate change as a security issue and reveals the symbols narratives and storylines that make up this discourse Drawing on three detailed case studies at the international level of the United Nations the regional level of the Euro Mediterranean and the national level of the UK the book reveals how climate change is turned into a non linear and unpredictable threat The resulting complexity discourse prevents the adoption of any exceptional measures and instead presents resilience as the only way to cope with the climate threat This book shows that we can only grasp the complexity of the securitization process and its implications in the climate change case by comparing it at different political levels over a longer period By developing a securitization framework the book makes an important contribution to the ongoing debate on security and resilience in critical security studies This book will be of much interest to students of critical security studies resilience environmental studies global governance and IR in general Environmental Health Perspectives, 1999 Animals and Early Modern Identity Pia F. Cuneo, 2017-07-05 Animals were everywhere in the early modern period and they impacted at least in some way the lives of every kind of early modern person from the humblest peasant to the greatest prince Artists made careers based on depicting them English gentry impoverished themselves spending money on them Humanists exercised their scholarship writing about them Pastors saved souls delivering sermons on them Nobles forged alliances competing with them Foreigners and indigenes negotiated with one another through trading them The nexus between animal human relationships and early modern identity is illuminated in this volume by the latest research of international scholars working on the history of art literature and of sixteenth and seventeenth century Germany France England Spain and South Africa Collectively these essays investigate how animals horses dogs pigs hogs fish cattle sheep birds rhinoceroses even sea monsters and other creatures served people in Europe England the Americas and Africa to defend contest or transcend the boundaries of early modern identities Developments in the methodologies employed by scholars to interrogate the past have opened up an intellectual and discursive space for and a concomitant recognition of the study of animals as a topic that significantly elucidates past and present histories Relevant to a considerable array of disciplines the study of animals also provides a means to surmount traditional disciplinary boundaries through processes of dynamic interchange and cross fertilization
