Federal Proposals To Tax Marijuana An Economic Analysis Crs Reports:

Federal Proposals to Tax Marijuana: An Economic Analysis Congressional Research Service, 2014-11-01 The combination of state policy and general public opinion favoring the legalizing of marijuana has led some in Congress to advocate for legalization and taxation of marijuana at the federal level The Marijuana Tax Equity Act of 2013 H R 501 would impose a federal excise tax of 50% on the producer and importer price of marijuana The National Commission on Federal Marijuana Policy Act of 2013 H R 1635 proposes establishing a National Commission on Federal Marijuana Policy that would review the potential revenue generated by taxing marijuana among other things This report focuses solely on issues surrounding a potential federal marijuana tax First it provides a brief overview of marijuana production Second it presents possible justifications for taxes and in some cases estimates the level of tax suggested by that rationale Third it analyzes possible marijuana tax designs The report also discusses various tax administration and enforcement issues such as labeling and tracking Economic theory suggests the efficient level of taxation is equal to marijuana s external cost to society Studies conducted in the United Kingdom UK and Canada suggest that the costs of individual marijuana consumption to society are between 12% and 28% of the costs of an individual alcohol user and total social costs are even lower after accounting for the smaller number of marijuana users in society Based on an economic estimate of 30 billion of net external costs for alcohol the result is an external cost of 0.5 billion to 1.6 billion annually for marijuana These calculations imply that an upper limit to the economically efficient tax rate could be 0.30 per marijuana cigarette containing an average of one half of a gram of marijuana or 16.80 per ounce An increased number of users in a legal market would raise total costs but not necessarily costs per unit Some could also view excise taxes as a means to curtail demand particularly as the price of marijuana can be expected to drop from current retail prices of up to 200-300 per ounce to prices closer to the cost of production at 5-18 per ounce if broadly legalized The demand for marijuana is estimated to be relatively price inelastic meaning that consumer demand is relatively insensitive to price changes Although previous studies of marijuana demand largely examine consumers willing to engage in illegal activities it appears that higher tax rates would have a minor effect on reducing demand With this said tax policy coupled with adequate law enforcement could be an effective tool to limit marijuana consumption among youth as empirical studies indicate that their demand is more sensitive to price than non youth Excise taxes on marijuana could also be levied primarily to raise revenue as has been historically the case with tobacco and alcohol As an illustration assuming a total market size of 40 billion a federal tax of 50 per ounce is estimated to raise about 6.8 billion annually after accounting for behavioral effects associated with price decreases following legalization The choices in administrative design could affect consumer behavior production methods evasion rates or the tax base of a federal marijuana excise tax Some of the more significant choices include whether to exempt medicinal uses or homegrown marijuana from tax

Considering Marijuana Legalization Jonathan P. Caulkins, Beau Kilmer, Mark

Kleiman, Robert J. MacCoun, Gregory Midgette, Pat Oglesby, Rosalie Liccardo Pacula, Peter H. Reuter, 2015-01-16 Marijuana legalization is a controversial and multifaceted issue that is now the subject of serious debate In May 2014 Vermont Governor Peter Shumlin signed a bill requiring the Secretary of Administration to produce a report about various consequences of legalizing marijuana This resulting report provides a foundation for thinking about the various consequences of different policy options while being explicit about the uncertainties involved Regulating Cannabis DR Todd Subritzky, 2021-07-23

A 5 year investigation of the implementation of the world's first fully regulated cannabis market for pleasure in Colorado Kind words for Regulating Cannabis This book clearly demonstrates authority in the field of international drug policy and draws predominantly on the latest evidence in doing so It is a substantial contribution to an emerging policy issue with a plethora of new knowledge displayed throughout Overall I found this to be a vital addition to the canon of knowledge regarding cannabis policy change Dr Mark Monaghan Head of the Department of Social Policy Sociology and Criminology University of Birmingham The author has broadened the understanding of cannabis regulation when it comes to conflicts between consumer protection private profit and public health He has successfully applied and enriched several theoretical concepts in the context of cannabis legalization especially when it comes to the elephant in the room the wellness potential of cannabis on legal markets Vendula Belackova PhD Drug Policy Researcher Adjunct Senior Lecturer at the Social Policy Research Centre University of New South Wales Contents at a glance At a time when cannabis legalisation is spreading across an increasing number of jurisdictions globally this book cuts across the noise and presents a factual account of issues faced by regulators in the real world context of Colorado It can be read as an evidence based handbook for regulators and should be a first port of call for anyone interested in the legalisation of cannabis In January 2014 Colorado implemented a commercial cannabis market for pleasure the first jurisdiction globally to implement a regulated adult use cannabis supply chain from seed to sale It was reported as an historic occasion that presaged a grand social and economic experiment in drug legalisation Including analysis of hundreds of pages of government documents almost 1000 media articles and interviews in the field with over 30 senior government officials industry executives and front line public health representatives this book is the definitive account of real world cannabis policy implementation The cannabis academic public health literature is examined prodigiously including its potential for harm and benefit together with alternative regulatory approaches The book also features a number of papers published in academic journals based on the PhD research of the author The commodification of cannabis vs the craft approach together with the entanglement of the medical and recreational markets are two of many topical themes discussed in detail Multiple recommendations relevant for other jurisdictions considering the legalisation of cannabis are presented Recognising the limitations of harm reduction approaches that cannot conceptually conceive beneficial aspects of cannabis consumption a new framework the spectrum of wellness is proposed as an alternative in Appendix 1 of the book Tax Treatment of Organizations Providing Health Care Services, and Excise Taxes on

Marijuana Victor P. Tyson,2015 The federal Controlled Substances Act CSA outlaws the possession cultivation or distribution of marijuana except for authorized research Twenty states have regulatory schemes that allow possession cultivation or distribution of marijuana for medicinal purposes Two have revenue regimes that allow possession cultivation or sale generally The U S Constitution s Supremacy Clause preempts any state law that conflicts with federal law Although there is some division the majority of state courts have concluded that the federal state marijuana law conflict does not require preemption of state medical marijuana laws The legal consequences of a CSA violation however remain in place Nevertheless current federal criminal enforcement guidelines counsel confining investigations and prosecutions to the most egregious affront to federal interests This book analyzes some legal issues related to marijuana and provides some proposals to resolve the issues It also discusses federal tax proposals for marijuana Legalized Marijuana Cost-Benefit Analysis Interim Study Committee Colorado. General Assembly. Legalized Marijuana Cost-Benefit Analysis Interim Study Committee,2016 State Marijuana Legalization Initiatives Congressional Research Congressional Research Service,2014-12-04 Marijuana is the most commonly used illicit drug in the United States In 2013 an estimated 19.8 million individuals in the United States aged 12 or older 7.5% of this population had used marijuana in the past month While reported marijuana use is similar to that in 2012 it has generally increased since 2007 when 5.8% of individuals aged 12 or older were current users of marijuana Mirroring this increase in use marijuana availability in the United States has also increased This growth has been linked to factors such as rising marijuana production in Mexico and increasing marijuana cultivation in the United States led by criminal networks including Mexican drug trafficking organizations Along with the uptick in the availability and use of marijuana in the United States there has been a general shift in public attitudes toward the substance In 1969 12% of the surveyed population supported legalizing marijuana today more than half 52% of surveyed adults have expressed opinions that marijuana should be legalized And 60% indicate that the federal government should not enforce its marijuana laws in states that allow the use of marijuana The federal government through the Controlled Substances Act CSA P L 91 513 21 U S C 801 et seq prohibits the manufacture distribution dispensation and possession of marijuana Over the last few decades some states have deviated from an across the board prohibition of marijuana Evolving state level positions on marijuana include decriminalization initiatives legal exceptions for medical use and legalization of certain quantities for recreational use Notably in the November 2012 elections voters in Washington State and Colorado voted to legalize regulate and tax the recreational use of small amounts of marijuana In the November 2014 elections legalization initiatives passed in Alaska Oregon and the District of Columbia further spreading the discrepancy between federal and state marijuana laws in the United States These latest moves have spurred a number of questions regarding their potential implications for related federal law enforcement activities and for the nation s drug policies on the whole Among these questions is whether or to what extent state initiatives to decriminalize or legalize the use of marijuana conflict with federal law In general federal law enforcement has tailored its efforts to target criminal networks rather than individual criminals its stance regarding marijuana offenders appears consistent with this position While drug related investigations and prosecutions remain a priority for federal law enforcement the Obama Administration has suggested that efforts will be harnessed against large scale trafficking organizations rather than on recreational users of marijuana In an August 2013 memorandum Deputy Attorney General Cole stated that while marijuana remains an illegal substance under the Controlled Substances Act the Department of Justice would focus its resources on the most significant threats in the most effective consistent and rational way The memo outlined eight enforcement priorities including preventing the distribution of marijuana to minors and preventing the diversion of marijuana from states where it is legal under state law into other states It is unclear whether or how the Department of Justice is tracking activity to ensure that federal enforcement priorities are being followed in states that have legalized marijuana
