QUESTION 3

- 3.1 Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow.

Peat lands are special wetlands that play a very important role in ecology. A peat land, of approximately 6 000 years old, near Mafeking is almost destroyed because of excessive extraction of water from the nearby Molopo river. The water is extracted for human consumption.

Peat lands like the one near Mafeking is exceptional and play an important role in storing water as well as preventing climate changes.

Dr Phil-Louis Grundling said that carbon that is 'held' or 'stored' by peat lands combats climate change because it decreases the amount of carbon in the atmosphere.

Peat lands trap about one third of the world's carbon. Approximately 50% of wetlands worldwide are peat lands. However in South Africa about 10% of the wetlands are peat lands.

Grundling explained that peat lands can hold about 1 000 times its own mass in water. This replenishes the water table and is the source that keeps streams flowing. The "sponge effect" of the peat also makes it possible to store water that is then released during dry seasons.

Dr Grundling said that it might be too late to restore the peat land near Mafeking but it might be possible to restore some parts of it if more water is supplied to this peat land.

The result of this destruction is depletion of the water table. The habitat of numerous fish and frog species that lived in this peat land was also destroyed.

From: Beeld: 24 September 2016.

- 3.1.1 Give TWO other reasons (not mentioned in the passage) that can lead to the destruction of wetlands. (2)
- 3.1.2 Discuss reasons from the passage regarding the importance of these specific wetlands for the environment. (4)
- 3.1.3 Suggest a way in which this peat land near Mafeking can be restored. (2)

Daily Graphic Ransford Tetteh, 2014-09-19 Interdisciplinary Approaches to Multilingualism Suzanne Curtin, Mary Grantham O'Brien, Rahat Naqvi, 2015-07-16 This research topic stems from the Interdisciplinary Approaches to Multilingualism conference which was hosted by the Language Research Centre at the University of Calgary. It was the first conference of its kind which brought together the work of researchers, educators and policy makers in the areas of first and second language acquisition from psycholinguistic and pedagogical perspectives. The goal was to provide an opportunity for participants to engage with the implications of multilingualism from a range of perspectives including the effects of being bilingual from infancy to adulthood, the process and benefits of learning multiple languages and the impact of multilingualism on society.

Moving Beyond Grades to Purposeful Learning David Wei Loong Hung, 2023-09-14 This book explores future directions in Singaporean education as it moves beyond its historically formative goals of survival, efficiency and performance and its emphasis on grades and formal credentialing. It examines the future of education via the 4Life framework, a four-form model for purposeful learning centered around social, emotional regulation and the well-being of the individual learner. Life-long learning: the learning that occurs over a learner's lifespan. Life-deep learning: a deep understanding of learned content and adaptive expertise. Life-wide learning: learning in multiple contexts besides the school environment. Life-wise learning: learning which focuses on the learner's values, morals, character and historical empathy. This book also illustrates how purposeful learning serves to equip learners with the knowledge, skills, dispositions and competencies they need to thrive as adaptive workers in the economy of the future.

The Schenley Experiment Jake Oresick, 2017-04-14 The Schenley Experiment is the story of Pittsburgh's first public high school, a social incubator in a largely segregated city that was highly even improbably successful throughout its 156-year existence. Established in 1855 as Central High School and reorganized in 1916 as Schenley High School, it was a model of innovative public education and an ongoing experiment in diversity. Its graduates include Andy Warhol, actor Bill Nunn and jazz virtuoso Earl Hines, and its prestigious academic program and pensions lured such teachers as future Pulitzer Prize winner Willa Cather. The subject of investment as well as destructive neglect, the school reflects the history of the city of Pittsburgh and provides a study in both the best and worst of urban public education practices there and across the Rust Belt. Integrated decades before Brown v Board of Education, Schenley succumbed to de facto segregation during the white flight of the 1970s; it rose again to prominence in the late 1980s when parents camped out in six-day-long lines to enroll their children in visionary superintendent Richard C. Wallace's reinvigorated school. Although the historic triangular building was a cornerstone of its North Oakland neighborhood and a showpiece for the city of Pittsburgh, officials closed the school in 2008, citing over $50 million in necessary renovations, a controversial event that captured national attention. Schenley alumnus Jake Oresick tells this story through interviews, historical documents and hundreds of first-person accounts drawn from a community indelibly

Fletcher-Flinn,2015-09-28 Learning to read and to spell are two of the most important cultural skills that must be acquired by children and for that matter anyone learning a second language We are not born with an innate ability to read A reading system of mental representations that enables us to read must be formed in the brain Learning to read in alphabetic orthographies is the acquisition of such a system which links mental representations of visual symbols letters in print words with pre existing phonological sound and semantic comprehension cognitive systems for language Although spelling draws on the same representational knowledge base and is usually correlated with reading the acquisition processes involved are not quite the same Spelling requires the sequential production of letters in words and at beginning levels there may not be a full degree of integration of phonology with its representation by the orthography Reading on the other hand requires only the recognition of a word for pronunciation Hence spelling is more difficult than reading and learning to spell may necessitate more complete representations or more conscious access to them. The learning processes that children use to acquire such cognitive systems in the brain and whether these same processes are universal across different languages and orthographies are central theoretical questions. Most children learn to read and spell their language at the same time, thus the co-ordination of these two facets of literacy acquisition needs explication as well as the effect of different teaching approaches on acquisition. Lack of progress in either reading and or spelling is also a major issue of concern for parents and teachers necessitating a cross disciplinary approach to the problem encompassing major efforts from researchers in neuroscience, cognitive science, experimental psychology and education. The purpose of this Research Topic is to summarize and review what has been accomplished so far and to further explore these general issues. Contributions from different perspectives are welcomed and could include theoretical, computational and empirical works that focus on the acquisition of literacy including cross orthographic research.
