The Education Systems of Europe Wolfgang Hörner, Hans Döbert, Botho von Kopp, Wolfgang Mitter, 2007-05-03

Education is a paradoxical phenomenon On the one hand it is universal as since the period of Enlightenment it has been declared universal good for everybody Moreover we learnt by historical research following the ideas of world system theory that since this time as far as its main structures are concerned compulsory state education given by professional teachers in classrooms it took even universal traits However on the other hand the fact that education became state education organised or at least controlled by the state was the beginning of another tradition line education in the form of state organised educational institutions became a means of creating national identity Universal inclusion as for the light of reason shining for everybody is opposed to more or less nationalist exclusion of all the others shaping the feature of a particular nation state with a particular educational system This fundamental dialectical tension between the universal and the particular was one to the important motives to make this handbook One of the central issues of the country studies is precisely to display the relationship between universal values and the search for national identity Another motive is given by the European dimension of the handbook

Access to Education A. Sauvy,2012-12-06 It is difficult for us today to imagine that equal educational opportunity with which we are so deeply preoccupied was at one time considered to be if not an evil at least a futile objective and that those who held such an opinion were completely insincere and even disinterested For a vertically stratified society equality of education had to be opposed because it would disturb an equilibrium as vital as that of a building In the Middle Ages only the Church was able to look for new members at the bottom of the social ladder since ecclesiastical office was not inherited by birth But efforts in this direction were necessarily very limited even if only because of the material obstacles to such an aim Equality of education as well as any other type of equality could not even be imagined by the aristocracy whose very existence would have been threatened Its initial indifference was followed by active opposition When it became possible to formulate the question of the diffusion of education in the 17th and 18th centuries the principle itself met with a fundamental objection The ruling class idle by its very nature feared that the workers and especially those on the land would abandon their productive labours now felt to be degrading and swell the ranks of the parasites in the cities      Proceedings of the National Science Council, Republic of China ,1997
